

A Challenge of 1973 -- How to Combine Quad-Cityans' Generosity With United Fund's Needs

By WILLIAM F. WINTER
Editor
(Third of a series)

Look and Life, general magazines, no longer exist. Specialty magazines, each emphasizing a particular subject, are flourishing.

During 1972, Quad-Cityans responded overwhelmingly to specific appeals for assistance. Three notable examples come to mind.

On June 2, Anthony McCrea, nine years old, was burned severely in an accident involving flaming gasoline. He underwent six operations but his condition remained poor and there was fear he might not survive.

The Press-Record ran a detailed article in September and things began to happen fast. Complicated procedural steps were carried out within a matter of hours and it was arranged for him to be flown to the Shriners' Burns Institute in Cincinnati.

His morale and physical condition improved remarkably and doctors at the center described his progress as "astounding." The Marshall School student seemed to need strict exercise routines so that muscles in his injured legs developed properly. But after 41 days in Ohio he was able to return home.

One of the happiest occasions for him and the Tri-City Shrine Club occurred Nov. 16 when he was able to attend and serve as the club's guest speaker.

Another nine-year-old Granite Cityan, John Allen Young, was disclosed by the Press-Record to be suffering from an incurable condition which eventually will make him totally blind.

He had voiced the hope of seeing principal historic sites to store them in his memory before his sight is gone. Local residents reacted instantly to help develop ways in which the Nidderhous School pupil could travel extensively in 1973.

The outcome of the John Allen Young story is still seems destined to be sad. But there is no question that his life has been enriched by the experiences his fellow Quad-Cityans have helped bring about through their warm, generous interest and action.

The same kind of outpouring of concern and willingness to do something about it—developed during the December 1972 Salvation Army "Tree of Lights" campaign.

An unprecedented financial target of $12,000 was established and surpassed.

As a result, the holidays were brighter for a large number of people in need. Families numbering 550 — totaling several thousand persons — received food baskets, while 337 local school children obtained clothing and shoes.

Hundreds of other youngsters were given toys and dolls, and there were seasonal gifts to Scott Air Force Base patients and to aged residents of several nursing homes.

The point is obvious: Quad-Cityans care. When they recognize a need, their hearts melt, and "money is no object." They also are unselfish with their time and energy.

All of which brings up the magazines' plight: Specialize and succeed; generalize and fail.

The Tri-Cities Area United Fund is a fine organization composed of a dozen and a half agencies and scores of people performing helpful, desired services for virtually every Quad-Cityan.

Yet, a 100% drive has eluded the staff for more years than it is comfortable to remember — and the 1973 operation of some of the agencies is in jeopardy.

Is the United Fund appeal too general, too easy to shrug off?

How can an individual or group or business give $25 to a specific request and then give only $10 or $5 or nothing to such a large and comprehensive program as the U-F?

A $5 or $10 annual gift when divided up provides only a half-penny or penny per week per agency, an insufficient amount of such services are to continue.

There is no doubt about Quad-Cityans' generosity. How to unleash it more effectively to solve the United Fund dilemma constitutes one of this community's chief challenges of 1973.

Alternative to Landfill Called Too Expensive

By GARY SCHNEIDER
Press-Record Staff Writer

A special use permit for expansion of the Mal Landfill on Chouteau Island is expected to be approved by the Madison County Board next Wednesday, even though the proposal was rejected by the board Dec. 20, by one vote.

The cost of trash disposal without such a landfill is being described as excessive.

One board member who was ill, Charles F. Bode of Edwardsville was hospitalized for the Dec. 20 meeting and is believed to be a supporter of the landfill expansion. His vote Jan. 17 might turn the tide in favor of Mal.

Another prospect for reversing the board's action is member James R. Heil of Godfrey, who voted against the special use permit Dec. 20.

Several persons involved in efforts to pass the permit, including Kenneth Harbarger, manager of Mal, say Heil has indicated he may change his vote Jan. 17, although he would prefer a limited landfill of five to 10 years and less acreage than the 246 acres being sought by Mal for expansion.

One possible stumbling block to the approval may be Nicholas Byron, new state's attorney, who has assigned two men to study the legality of reconsidering the proposal.

Byron said yesterday that either the board's rules of order or state statutes may prevent the issue being raised again, but that he will not rule on the matter until the board asks for his legal opinion.

The Madison County Zoning

Appeals Board rejected the request for a special use permit and the County Board was required to muster a three-fourths vote to override the recommendation of the appeals board.

The County Board voted 21-7 in favor of Mal, one vote short of the necessary 22.

The proposal was endorsed Monday by the County Board's Environmental Control Committee, but Jay Mueller, of Granite City, chairman of that committee, has indicated his group will not introduce the Mal issue at the Jan. 17 board meeting.

Whether their endorsement will be conveyed to the board is still in question. "I will depend upon what is said" in the meeting, he said. He added that one of the committee members may bring the Mal issue to the floor.

Members of the committee, besides Mueller, are Carl Mueller, of Granite City, and Wayne Bridgewater of Roxana and George Walter of Godfrey.

Buehler said the committee's endorsement is significant in that—if the zoning is approved, Mal must then seek an operating permit from his group; it can be approved or denied without approval of the County Board. Mal already has been granted a permit from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

Expansion plans call for a nearly pollution-free landfill, according to Harbarger, to provide a place for Madison County residents.

Levee Tax Load Heaviest Here

By HARRY BARNES
Press-Record Staff Writer

Operations of the old East Side Levee and Sanitary District over the past decade cost the taxpayers of the bi-county agency a total of $20,285,985, of which Quad-City residents paid 48.8%, it was disclosed today in a study of the district's tax statistics.

The fact that Quad-Cityans paid $9,899,647 in levee district taxes over the three-year period or only $488,708 less than taxpayers, supports a long-standing complaint by the Madison County residents of the old district that they were footing almost half of the entire levee district bill, although 85% of district operations and cost occurred in St. Clair County.

The study also supports arguments by Quad-City taxpayers in favor of splitting the old levee district along the county line to create separate levee districts in Madison and St. Clair Counties and this per-the St. Clair County levee trustees.

Efforts by St. Clair County levee trustees and political leaders to block the levee district split obviously are based on concern over the loss of tax revenue from the Madison County sector of the old bi-county levee district.

The Madison County area of the old East Side district was made up of Granite City, Venice, Nameoki and Chouteau Townships in the Quad-City area, and very fractional parts of Collinsville and Edwardsville.

Benjamin, Mo., was virtually all of the Madison County taxes to the levee district were paid in the four townships of the Quad-City area, with the Collinsville and Edwardsville taxes amounting to only a few hundred dollars each year.

The anticipated loss of revenue to the St. Clair County Levee District at the time the dividing legislation was signed by Ogilvie was emphasized by the trustees that they would have to lay off about 40 employees if the district split were to be achieved.

Tax records show that the amount of money paid by the old levee district by Quad-City taxpayers has been increasing regularly from year to year, with the St. Clair County tax

W. JOHN STEELE

W. John Steele, Retired Realtor, Dies Here at 90

W. John Steele, 90, of 2122 Garfield Ave., who formerly was engaged in the real estate and insurance business with the Steele-Kunemann Agency from 1924 to 1968, died at 2:30 a.m. Wednesday at his home. He had been in declining health for the past month.

Mr. Steele was born in Sparta, Ill., and lived in the Quad-Cities 55 years.

He was active in community and civic affairs, having served as president of the Nameoki School Board in 1930-31 and as a director of the Granite City Real Estate Board. Mr. Steele was the donor of land for Steele Park in Eagle Park Acres.

He was an active and charter member of the Unity Chapel at Stratford and Village Lanes. His late brother, Joseph Steele, was mayor of Granite City from 1915 to 1917.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ivy K. (Kunemann) Steele, one daughter, Mrs. Kenneth (Carol Jeanette) Holbert of Collinsville, one son, Everett G. Steele of Glen Carbon, and three grandsons, Bryan and Randall Steele and Kenneth Holbert. Another son, John Howard, preceded him in death.

Funeral arrangements are given in the obituary column.

The real estate and insurance agency will close Friday in respect to Mr. Steele.

Officials of Nameoki Township who have been criticized by some Granite City officials for not allocating funds for Dorey Slough drainage improvements, defended their position at the Nameoki Town Board meeting Monday night in the town hall.

Douglas Teetor, town clerk, told the 30 persons present that the township cannot legally use tax funds for drainage.

"Our residents pay $150,000 a year in taxes to the Levee District for drainage," Teetor said, adding that the township should not be asked to give more of the residents' money for drainage programs.

"We have been getting some undue criticism from some of the officials of Granite City. We have been and are concerned," Nameoki Township, both officials and citizens, started a concentrated effort on this project in 1968.

Among those who have criticized the township officials for not allocating drainage funds is Mayor Donald Partney of Granite City.

Teetor said Granite City Township also is unable to carry the project although the city legally can.

"They are confusing the powers of a city and the powers of a township," Teetor said. "Granite City Township has not offered anything because they can't."

Granite City Township boundaries are co-extensive with those of the city, and the Council members also serve as the Granite City Town Board.

Teetor told those present that the Illinois Division of Waterways has proposed a $60,000-in plan for draining the Dorey Slough area through the present Ames Avenue sewer.

If the Granite City Council approves the plan, work can begin this spring. Council members are opposing the project.

"The men in the division of waterways are experts. They have a plan and we should listen to them."

If people want more than the present drainage plan now, I think the permanent

Moore Reported 'Fair'

Opposition for Treasurer and Clerk in April

An election fight for the offices of city clerk and city treasurer in Granite City was reported developing today amid a sharp pickup in political activity for Quad-City elections next April.

An opposition ticket of candidates for village posts in the April 17 election at Pontoon Beach was filed Wednesday and a ticket of candidates for Nameoki township posts, most of them incumbents, filed naming petitions with Town Clerk Douglas Teetor.

The possibility of a race for the city clerk and city treasurer posts in the April 3 Granite City election developed as Homer "Cal" Pendleton, former Granite City clerk who resigned that post three years ago, obtained nominating petition forms as a candidate for city treasurer.

At the same time, Weldon Burch, 2518 Iowa St., obtained petition blanks as a candidate for city clerk in the April 3 balloting.

Incumbent City Treasurer Paul Rutledge, a former Granite City alderman now serving as treasurer by appointment, and Robert Stevens, incumbent city clerk, have filed nominating petitions for re-election.

Stevens also is serving by appointment, having filled the vacancy created by Pendleton's resignation in 1970.

Opposition for aldermanic posts subject to the Granite City election also appeared probable today.

City clerk's office issued petition blanks to Mary Ann Gaughan, former Granite City assistant supervisor, as a candidate for alderman of the Seventh Ward, and to Richard Partney, Third Ward; John Zikovich, Fourth Ward; James Kelahan, Seventh Ward, and Charles Rudder, Sixth Ward.

A battle for the mayor's office already has been waged between incumbent Mayor Donald Partney and Sixth Ward Alderman Paul Rutledge, who have filed nominating petitions.

In Pontoon Beach, where the village election will be held April 17 in conjunction with municipal elections in the cities of Madison and Venice, a second full ticket of candidates for

A passenger, William A. Benson, 18, of Edwardsville, suffered serious injuries. The two were taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital where the Wolfe youth died at 3:15 p.m. He had multiple contusions to the head, chest, legs and arms.

Wolfe was treated for a fractured left forearm and left leg, lacerations to the right knee and abrasions to the right cheek and was transferred to Jewish Hospital, St. Louis, in serious condition following x-rays.

'Operation Identification' Planned Areawide in Program to Cut Thefts

Anyone wishing to lessen the chances of having his home burglarized may now do so if he takes a few minutes to visit his local police station and join "Operation Identification."

Through sponsorship of the Southwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, the anti-theft and burglary program will be launched Monday throughout the state of Illinois.

Madison, Venice, Granite City and Ponton Beach Police Departments are participating and the sheriff's department will handle the program in the unincorporated areas.

Citizens of the area are asked to visit their local police departments where they may check out, at no charge, an electric engraving tool. The next step is for the person to engrave his driver's license number on all valuable items such as TV sets, stereos, radios, cameras, electric appliances and other valuables.

Persons will be given a brochure, provided free by the

Southwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, titled "Residential Burglary and What to do About It."

The pamphlet points out many practical ways to give additional security to homes, apartments and garages, and includes a section in which the homeowner may list personal property.

To further discourage would-be thieves, stickers are to be placed on all entrances warning intruders that the homeowner has joined "Operation Identification" and all valuable items have been marked accordingly.

Ponton Beach police will distribute letters door-to-door to explain the program during the weekend.

Roy Koberman, community relations officer for the Granite City Police Department explained that a series of neighborhood block parties to explain the program will be held. Police also will address various civic and fraternal groups.

The four departments now are distributing posters encouraging people to take part in the program.

Groups wishing to have a police officer speak on the program may contact their local police department.

Six Area Students Earn Honors at LCCC

Placed on the Dean's Honor List for achieving grade-point averages between 3.50 and 3.74 were Susan Boyd, David Knight, Dale Treece and Rex Waggoner of Granite City, and Mark Koehler of Venice.

Mrs. Marjorie Dintelmann, volunteer coordinator, said, "Our subject will cover the work of the Speech and Hearing Clinic at the hospital, and will be conducted by the clinic director, Jerry Murphy, and Julie Chiu, hearing and speech specialist." Reservations must be made through the Volunteer Office by Tuesday, Jan. 23, she said.

Murphy plans to demonstrate a hearing test through the aid of questions regarding how to evaluate a hearing or speech defect.

Fleet Auto Prices Illegally Raised -- Attorney General

Illinois Attorney General William J. Scott has filed suit against General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co., and Chrysler Corp., charging the three giant auto companies with conspiring to unreasonably restrain trade in governmental motor fleet sales.

Scott's suit, filed in the U. S. District Court in Chicago, charged the defendants with violation of the federal Sherman Antitrust Act, and with violation of the Illinois Antitrust Act.

Scott alleged that since May 1970, the three firms have conspired to eliminate or greatly reduce price concessions made to dealers in connection with fleet sales to the state and to local governments.

The result has been a tremendous price increase for the state, and other governmental agencies, amounting as much as $800 to $1,000 for each car purchased, it was alleged.

The state alone purchases 1,000 vehicles a year, about 600 of which are police squad cars.

Cost of the alleged conspiracy to deny dealers price concessions on fleet cars amounts to more than $1 million a year, less to the state, it is contended.

Scott said the suit includes claims by cities and counties throughout the state which also could involve additional millions.

The attorney general's suit asked for an immediate injunction to halt the alleged conspiracy, and for triple damages for the state, its subdivisions and local governments for losses suffered because of the alleged conspiracy.

Scott also asked that each of the three defendants be required to pay a civil penalty of $50,000 under the Illinois Antitrust Act.

The suit was filed as a class action in which the attorney general's office represented the state of Illinois, its departments, divisions, agencies, counties, municipalities, township and political subdivisions organized under authority of the state.

Scott's suit said these public bodies "have, in the course of their operations, purchased motor vehicles including automobiles, trucks and bus chassis from one or more of the defendants or their co-conspirators during the period in suit, and have sustained damages as a result of the combination, conspiracy and violation of the antitrust laws herein alleged."

Changes in Pesticide Use Outlined by Farm Speaker

By WARREN W. BUNDY

U. of I. Extension Adviser.

A review of what is happening at national and state levels in regard to the use of pesticides in agricultural production was given by Extension Entomologist Dr. H. B. Petty at the Madison county agronomy day program in Edwardsville.

Petty said farmers are changing from the use of chlorinated hydrocarbons such as aldrin and dieldrin to the use of organophosphate insecticides such as parathion and diazinon.

Persistence of chlorinated hydrocarbons and resistance of certain insects to them are main reasons for the change. Chlorinated hydrocarbons for soil insect control were applied to 4 million acres of corn in Illinois in 1964, compared with 19 million acres in 1972.

Petty said "we have problems in changing, but we have a public that cannot be ignored. We are going to have to try on another shoe, we are now in transition, and we'll change."

He said the federal environmental pesticide control act signed into law in 1972 provides for the classification of pesticides as either general use or restricted use. The pesticides have not yet been classified. Persons who apply restricted use pesticides will be required to have a license.

Applicators will be classified as private (not for hire) or custom or commercial (for hire). Farmers who apply restricted pesticides even on their own land will be required to have a private applicator's license. This law takes effect in 1974.

Petty said a committee on which he serves as chairman is considering how dealers who sell restricted use pesticides may be regulated in Illinois.

Aldrin and dieldrin are under hearings at national level. However, their use as soil insecticides still is legal, except on dairy farms, even though they are not generally recommended in Illinois.

The Illinois Department of Public Health prohibits the use or storage of the chlorinated hydrocarbon insecticides aldrin, dieldrin, endrin, lindane, or heptachlor on dairy farms, except for use in the farm residence.

much as aldrin and is only half as effective.

DDT has not been used in agricultural production in Illinois since 1964. The use or storage of DDT in Illinois was banned by law on Jan. 1, 1970. It is illegal to use except by permit issued by the Illinois Department of Agriculture of Public Health. It is now outlawed at national level.

Petty announced a custom pesticide dealers and applicators clinic will be held at Riemann's restaurant in Edwardsville Feb. 14 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. This annual clinic sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service and State Department of Agriculture provides information to custom applicators and operators who must be licensed annually under the Illinois custom or public application of pesticides act.

Grasshoppers may be a problem here in 1973 according to Petty. He found three grasshoppers, egg pods, per square yard in the fall count, and that is high enough to be a potential problem.

Overwintering corn borers average 19 worms per 100 corn stalks in Madison county. There must be 100 or more borers per 100 stalks to represent a potential problem.

Petty urged alfalfa weevil control methods which minimize harm to beneficial parasites and predators of insects. A fall treatment of alfalfa fields to kill adult alfalfa weevils is one such method.

We had cutworm problems in corn last year in Madison county. Petty emphasized the importance of identifying cutworm problems while the worms are small, before they have done much damage, and when they can be more easily controlled.

He reviewed control measures for corn rootworms, wireworms, flea beetles, corn aphids, common stalkborer, armyworm, Hessian fly, barn and pasture flies, and stored grain insects.

Open House Saturday At Guard Armory

Weapons and equipment will be displayed Saturday at the Illinois National Guard Armory, 2801 State St., East St. Louis, during an open house program planned by Headquarters Company, 3rd Battalion, 100th Infantry of the Illinois National Guard.

The public is invited to attend the special event, scheduled to take place from 10 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Questions concerning enlistment in the Guard, pay scales and requirements will be answered by the personnel on duty, according to Captain Edward L. Edwards of Granite City, company commander. Former servicemen and other males, 17 years and older, are eligible to join the Guard, the commanding officer pointed out.

Escorted tours of the facility will be offered visitors, together with refreshments, Capt. Edwards said.

The 180-member company has many members from the Quad-City area. During the holiday period the unit furnished men and equipment to aid the local Salvation Army in its gift basket program for needy families.

Red Tape Delays Opening State Office 3 Months

Opening of a new Work Incentive Program (WIN) office in the Granite City Labor Temple, 2014 State St., may be delayed by red tape until at least March, despite the fact that a two-year lease for the office begins Monday.

Charles Dunn, manager of WIN for Madison County, said Tuesday that a lack of proper federal and state authorization for telephones and other necessities, plus a long waiting list at the telephone company for installations, will delay the expansion of WIN at least until March and possibly longer.

The program presently utilizes the office at 1920 Edison Avenue and the new facility would be used to expand the program and add approximately 10 more employees to the WIN staff, Dunn explained.

The WIN program is an offshoot of the Illinois Department of Labor, Employment Services section, which maintains an office at 2609 Iowa St. Remodeling work on the Labor Temple office for WIN is to be completed by Monday at a cost of $15,200. The office has been vacant for two years.

When the new office is opened, a staff of about four persons will be maintained in the office at 1920 Edison Avenue to conduct testing and orientation programs for applicants to the WIN program, according to Dunn.

GC Steel Employees Aid Ailing Fellow Worker

Employees of Granite City Steel Company responded generously during the holiday period with $1,800 in donations to a one-day campaign to aid a fellow worker who has an incurable disease of the nervous system.

James Stuart of Granite City, one of the drive organizers, said the funds will help defray the medical and living expenses of Floyd Powell and his family, which includes seven children, three sons, 12, 11 and six months and four daughters, 10, 9, 8 and 4 years.

Contributions were deposited by plant employees into buckets placed at four entrances at the local steel mill. The project was referred to as "The Powell Fund Bucket Brigade."

Until June last year when his condition deteriorated, Powell, 36, was employed as a checker-weigher in the North Plant at Granite City Steel. He has worked at the firm for 15 years and is a member of the United Steelworkers of America, Local 16.

"I have never seen the man without a smile," Stuart commented, adding that Powell is fully aware of his ailment—multiple sclerosis—and its inevitable consequences.

Johnson Sets Record, Cougars Top Westminster

With four cagers shooting in double figures, the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville basketball team returned to its winning ways by defeating Westminster College 69-60 Wednesday night at Fulton, Mo.
Hoping to start a winning streak, Coach Jim Dudley will take his local Cougars, now 6-4 for the season, to Evansville, Ind., Saturday night for a game with Indiana State University.

Cougar guard Tony Johnson, averaging 22 points a game, was held to 16 points, at Fulton, but put the game on ice with four successive free throws.

In doing so, he set a new school record of 21 free throws without a miss. He broke the record of 20 in a row set by teammate Denny Throneburg two years ago.

Other SIUE cagers scoring were Throneburg with 12 points, Wednesday of next week with McKendree College furnishing the opposition in the Edwardsville high school gym.

State Loan Reports 1972 Savings Growth

The State Loan and Savings Association board reorganized for 1973 at a monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon. It was noted that savings grew during 1972 and that continued expansion is anticipated.

"In the savings and loan industry, savings increased at a record rate in 1972 and mortgage loans made were at a record high," President Robert E. Backs reported.

"State Loan and Savings shared in this national savings growth, and there should continue to be an ample supply of funds for local families wishing to buy homes."

It was the first meeting as a director for Attorney Maurice Dailey, successor to Alfred C. Stover, who has joined Douglas F. Little and Dr. A. H. Rode as director emeritus.

Officers re-elected Tuesday were Dr. J. C. Byers, chairman of the board; President Backs; Bernard S. Miller, secretary-treasurer; and Roberta A. Hudson, assistant secretary.

Carl A. Ranft was elected as vice-president, succeeding Stover.

James R. Seiz was elected as loan officer.
Other directors besides Dr. Byers, Backs, Ranft, Miller and

DECIDING FACTOR

The progress of civilization depends on the valuation each generation places on its young

MORE ABOUT Alternative

ty residents to dispose of their trash for the lowest possible price and with "minimum environmental impact."

He said a county incinerator, which has been proposed by some county board members as an alternative to the landfill expansion, would create a worse environmental impact and would cost about $10 million.

"The taxpayers of Madison County are not ready to spend $10 million on an incinerator which will just cause further environmental problems," Hartbarger asserted.

Many Chouteau Island residents have appeared at County Board meetings, public hearings and other gatherings, objecting to the expansion of the environmental on Chouteau Island will be harmed and predicting wells will be polluted.

Hartbarger said MAI, which is a subsidiary of SCA Services, Boston, Mass., has spent about $40,000 on engineering to assure that pollution would be kept to a minimum.

Noting that the state EPA has investigated the plans and given its approval, he remarked, "The EPA has a large staff and they know what they're doing."

"Mal has posted a $250,000 performance bond with the EPA and as soon as we do anything wrong, they can just take all or part of that money," he concluded.

Meanwhile, opponents of the Mal expansion are planning possible roadblocks. Mrs. Sybil H. Belliss of East Alton, a County Board member, has called for a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the board room of the County Courthouse at Edwardsville to consider "alternate solutions."

Among the speakers will be Dale Sherrard of the U. S. Soil Conservation District, and Professor Ronald Varborough of SIUE, who will discuss the nature of Chouteau Island land and its suitability for a landfill. A state EPA officer also is expected.

If the opposition fails to keep the County Board from approving the project, a court fight is anticipated; members of the Chouteau Island Citizens' Association have threatened to file suit.

Grounds for the suit are believed to be that a second vote on the issue allegedly would be illegal under the board's zoning ordinance.

CICA spokesmen have said that either the application to the Zoning Board of Appeals must be changed from the original request or the applicant must wait 12 months before re-submitting it.

Hartbarger said he has no intention of modifying the request, either for less land space or for a limited time span.

He said if dumping continues at the present rate, the new land would be filled in 22 years; but if the amount of trash generated by each household increases, as is projected, it may take only 11 or 12 years to fill the land.

He said with 50 acres to be reserved for cover dirt in case other sources are exhausted, and with the pyramiding necessary as the height of the land increases, the top surface of the landfill will be only about 125 or 130 acres.

"It would be against putting that kind of money into equipment just to have the landfill closed in a few years," Hartbarger noted. He said SCA Services has invested a $200,000 in new equipment just for the expansion and that more parts and equipment are on order, awaiting county approval to begin the new operation.

"It's old but true — the man who lives beyond his means always remains behind."

Roustio Stays, Backed by Team

Edwardsville High School basketball Coach Mel Roustio received a vote of confidence from the Edwardsville School Board Monday night amid speculation that he would be fired. Roustio received the support of team players, who presented the board petitions asking that their coach be retained, and from others who attended a meeting of the board.

Edwardsville was a pre-season favorite to win the Southwest Conference title but dropped to a 3-2 league record and 8-4 overall.

Before the meeting it was disclosed that several board members had proposed firing Roustio from the cage coach position only. He also is a physical education teacher and cross country coach.

Several players defended their coach, placing the blame on the players for their performance this season.

WHO WANTS IT? Venice cager Ray Mosby with ball on the right looks for a receiver as Lincoln players (dark jerseys) are poised and ready. Devil Ron Henry at the left, 6-5 center, is ready and waiting. Devil Tony Sittion is at the left rear. The Devils won in double overtime Tuesday 83-74 in their first home game of the season.

OFF THE BOARDS. Venice Red Devil Chuck Mosby (white jersey) and Lincoln's White (35) battle off the boards in a nip-and-tuck duel which Venice took 83-74 in double overtime. Ready for action are Devil Ron Henry (32) and Lincoln's Stroter (41) under the watchful eye of the referee.

Devils Overcome Lincoln in DOT 83-74 Before 1st Home Crowd to Remain Unbeaten

It took double overtime but the Venice High School basketball team poured it on in the sixth period of its season's home opener to defeat Lincoln of East St. Louis 83-74 Tuesday night, thrilling a standing-room only crowd of fans.

The local Red Devils were decisive going into the second overtime period with the score tied at 70-all as Ray Mosby bucketed six points, Cornelius Wiley added four and Dan Severs sank three while Lincoln was held to four markers.

The period, climaxing a tight battle throughout, protected an undefeated record in 11 games for the Venice team which ranked first in the Class A prep poll a week ago after the Devils dropped Lovejoy of Brooklynn to the second slot.

Quarter-time scores were tied at 15, 29, 46 and 62-all as the visitors remained stubborn. Devils Ron Henry and Wiley shared top scoring honors with Lincoln's White as they tallied 25 points. Adding to the Venice cause were Severs with 15 points, Mosby 14 and Tony Sittion 9.

Venice outshot Lincoln 31-30 from the field and 21-14 from the free-throw line. Twenty-one personal fouls were called against Lincoln and 14 against the Devils.

"This was the closest game we have had," Venice Coach Bill Ohlendorf commented. "We were not playing well at all and East St. Louis has really improved since Dec. 8 when we beat them 68-52."

"Due to Tony Sittion having a hurt ankle and Wiley out of school for four days, we have not been able to practice like we should have."

The Devils have a scheduled rest until Jan. 19 when they travel to Worden.

SIUE Grapplers Cold In Quadrangular Meet

Edwardsville's wrestling team did not fare too well during the weekend in Northwestern University's quadrangular meet held at Evanston. The two other Big Ten schools entered were the University of Illinois and the University of Minnesota.

As it turned out it appeared to be almost a dual meet between Minnesota and Northwestern. Coach Larry Kristoff's SIUE wrestlers were able to capture only one first place. Capt. Dave Cross's victory over Northwestern's Jim Torres in the 130-pound championship bout.

Kristoff could not conceal his disappointment. "We are a better team than our showing at Evanston would seem to indicate," he said.

He blamed the holiday layoff partially for the bad Cougar showing, but added "The boys' mental attitude was weak."

SIUE's Mike Barnes (142 pounds), Jerry Irvine (158 pounds) and Dennis Byrne (167 pounds) all lost first-round matches.

The heavier weights, until this season SIUE's weakest divisions, put up the strongest fighters at Evanston. Tom Trachsel of SIUE battled Scott Klippert of Northwestern in the 177-pound event but lost 5-1. Cougar 100-pounder Rob Rummell lost to University of Illinois' Palmer Klus.

Cougar heavy weight Barry Walsh looked like a world beater in his first match as he walked the Illinois Gary Greshaber. Larry Pruitt, hampered by a bad knee all season, lost to Minnesota's Jeff Lampe, 9-1. But making his first start for the Cougars, Terry Niblett saved a little prestige by defeating the U. of I.'s Andy Passaglia.

SIUE will travel to Edmondson, Okla., Friday for a dual meet with Central Oklahoma University.

Bass Fishing Club Organizes

With snow on the ground and temperatures near zero, who thinks about bass fishing? The answer is members of the new Plug Slingers Bass Club who held their first meeting Monday at Granite City Boat and Motor Co., the club sponsor.

Seven members and six prospective members were present as the goals of the club were discussed along with tournaments to be held in the near future. Rich Briggs and Bob McClew were inducted as new members.

According to Dwain Bridges secretary, the new group probably will limit its membership to 20 or 25 for the first year to establish a smooth running organization and then expand the membership.

A $10 membership fee is charged, and persons interested in more information may call Terry Land, club president, at 876-8908 or Bridges at 877-4523.

The next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 5 at their sponsor's building.

Matmen Continue to Break Records as Alton Falls 40-7

If the consistent victories by Coach Bill "Red" Schmitt's Granite City High School wrestlers are beginning to sound like a broken record—they are. Actually the team is continuing to break several records with each victory and Tuesday's 40-7 win here over Alton increased each record by one.

Probably the most impressive record standing is the 174 consecutive wins in dual meets against teams in the sectional area since 1956. The Warriors also are undefeated in dual meets this season with an 11-0 record.

Last season's squad had an 18-0 dual meet record and three straight wins at the end of the 1970-71 season gives Schmitt's squads a combined total of 32 dual meet victories without a loss.

The team also was officially ranked fifth in Illinois this week by "Wrestling Today" magazine which most coaches regard as the most authoritative source on Illinois wrestling.

Main East is ranked first followed by East Lewden, Proviso East and Moline.

Despite the ranking and the ongoing records, the prospects for an "easy road ahead" for the Warriors are in doubt, observers believe. The team has some young and relatively inexperienced wrestlers who have left weak spots in several middle and heavy weight classes.

There also are some tough teams remaining on the schedule before the Warriors dual season concludes Feb. 2. One of the strong challenges remaining will come Friday when Granite City will meet undefeated Belleville. East here.

Granite City has a season record of 7-0 with a tie with Cahokia. Warrior Dave Rushing (138) will have his hands full as he meets East's Mike Reeder who is 13-0 this season.

Reeder was fourth in the state last year and was a champion in the Holiday Wrestling Tournament here two weeks ago.

The sophomores of Belleville East and Granite City will battle in the GCHS gym at 6:30 p.m. and simultaneous junior varsity and varsity matches will begin about 7 p.m.

Another challenge to the Warrior undefeated streak will come Saturday as the Warriors and Carl Sandburg of Orland Park travel to Pekin to battle the 14th-ranked host school. Action there will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday. Pekin is 6-0 in dual meets this season.

In Tuesday's victory over Alton the Warriors won 10 matches while dropping two, both by decisions. Winners by pins for Granite City and the times of the matches were: Pat MacMillan (98), 1:18; Dan Heath (138), 4:37; and Jack Schooley (moved from 167 to 185), 2:42.

Decision winners were Phil Lapinski (105), 11:1; Rudy Pyle (112), 8:2; Kerry Johnson (moved from 119 to 126), 2:0; Dennis Ragan (upped from 126 to 132), 9:1; Dave Rushing (moved from 138 to 145), 6:4; Ken Nolan (155), 7:40; and John McMillon (heavyweight), 7:2.

Most losses were John Neubur (moved from 112 to 119), 12-9, and John Avedisian (switched from 185 to 167), 12-3.

The junior varsity squad, which also is undefeated with a 5-0 record this season, downed Alton 40-12 while the sophomores earned a 51-18 victory.

Winners for the Warrior JV squad by pins were Jim Caschetta (165), Don Heath (126), Terry Johnson (132), Chester Ferter (138) and Dave Hamilton (155).

Woody Halbrook (98) earned a superior decision and Laural Garzap (145) and Jim Barker (heavyweight) won by decisions.

Upland Game Hunting Season Extended Through Jan. 31

The upland game hunting season, due to end Monday in Illinois, has been extended through Jan. 31, according to James M. Lockart, supervisor of the Division of Wildlife Resources in the Department of Conservation.

"Studies by the Illinois Natural History Survey and Southern Illinois University, and observations of our own field biologists point out that hunter participation has been the lowest in years during this season," Lockart said.

"The low participation was due to adverse weather conditions and large amounts of standing crops in the field. This has accounted for an unproductive hunting season for most sportsmen."

Season dates which have been extended for an additional 16 days are for pheasant, quail, rabbit and Hungarian partridge game species.

Lockart pointed out that recent ice storms in the state have not diminished the upland game population.

"From my own personal observations, as well as those from the Illinois Natural History Survey and our biologists, game taken following the ice storms is still good and healthy, and carrying large amounts of body fat," he said.

"Between now and spring we will be losing large amounts of game cover due to the corn harvest and weather," Lockart concluded. "As we lose this cover we will lose wildlife. Therefore, with this extension of the season we will be harvesting game that would remain anyway in all probability."

Trojans Drop 59-53 Battle To Tough Northwest Cagers

The Madison High School basketball Trojans came within two points of tying Northwest of St. Louis Tuesday with 2½ minutes to go in to the last quarter but lost the game 59-53.

In the greater St. Louis area Northwest is ranked No. 4 behind Collinsville, East St. Louis and Kirkwood.

Northwest held quarter-time leads of 15-6, 32-24 and 49-40. The Trojans rallied in the final period to outscore their opponents 13-10.

"It was a good game against a tough team," Trojan Mentor

Larry Graham remarked. "We need to improve our ball handling. We had 19 turnovers against a tough man-to-man defense. The team hustled well as they took the game to Northwest and made a battle of it all the way. They did not let up a bit or get discouraged. I really was a two-point game several times."

"Alvin Wigfall went in action in the first quarter. He's new, 6-4 and is beginning to play real well. He is rough and aggressive and will be seeing a lot more varsity action."

Northwestern is now 11-1 for the season and Madison is 6-5. Top point-maker for the game was Northwest's 6-5 Forward Shelton who scored 22. Leading the Trojan attack was Jerry Belford with 16.

Other Trojans scoring were Anthony Matthews 15, Wigfall 10, Rudolph Bradley 8 and Roger Glasser and Charles Lucas 2.

The Trojans face a busy weekend as they host Assumption Friday and then it's on the road to Edwardsville for a Saturday contest. Game time both days is 8:15 p.m.

There will be a special presentation to Ruben Mendoza as the "Father of YMCA Soccer".

Join Tri-County Football League

The Little Rascals Boys Football Club of Granite City was accepted into the Tri-County Junior Football Conference last night at a league meeting in Belleville.

The new Granite City organization joins 14 other groups in the area who provide tackle football competition for boys in their own weight and age divisions.

The other cities are Alton, Collinsville, Wood River, Cahokia, Fairview, O'Fallon, Columbia, Millstadt and Bethalto. Belleville and Duplo each have two organizations in the conference.

Last year 37 teams were registered in four weight and age divisions.

Bob Patrick, president of the Little Rascals, told the Press-Record that the weight and age divisions in which Granite City teams will play will be determined by the response to a player pre-registration clinic planned for the near future.

The number of boys who will play on a Little Rascal team next year will be determined by the response to an organization meeting to be held at 8 p.m. next Thursday at the Eagles Lodge.

Pens interested in the organization are urged to attend.

YMCA Aquatic Staff Trains, Updating Teaching Methods

The YMCA aquatic staff is continuing to increase its skills under the new national YMCA aquatic program. Kent D. Dunn, Al Tharp and Mike Tharp took two full days of institute training in St. Louis during the holidays.

They participated in swimming instructor and lifesaving instructor institutes.

Skills taught and administrative procedures were changed at the March 1972 National Aquatic Institute. Dunn, who holds an aquatic director rating under the old program, is now retraining in all phases of the new program.

More emphasis is placed on diving, personal safety and situation or combination test instead of individual skills.

The new system is now being taught at the Tri-City Area YMCA. Areas for training coming yet in the spring of 1973 are a pre-school instructors institute, handicapped instructors institute and a Region 1 sponsored institute for aquatic instructors and directors.

"Aquatic leadership is a growing need across the country," the "Y" physical director, Dunn, commented. He can be contacted at 876-7200.

William Meehan Retained as Fire Chief at Venice

William Meehan was retained as chief of the Venice Volunteer Fire Department by a vote of the members, the Venice City Council was informed Tuesday night.

Other officers retained were Thomas Scaturro, president; Thomas McCosky, secretary; Charles Burger, treasurer; and Gerald Suggs, trustee. They were installed Tuesday.

Meehan announced five appointments during the Venice council meeting: Scaturro and Willie Wuma as assistant chiefs, McCosky as captain, Burger as fire marshal and Harold Koelker Sr. as chaplain.

The City Council also received a report from the Venice Board of Fire and Police Commissioners recommending that a Mervyn Langston be appointed a police sergeant when a vacancy exists.

Langston successfully completed the required examination for promotion. A sergeant post will be vacated when one of the officers is named assistant chief after a test for Jan. 22. The assistant chief's opening was created by the retirement of Merle E. Hayden in December.

The council was informed that objections to 1971 taxes have been filed in the clerk's office by the Norfolk & Western Railroad Co., Gulf, Mobile and Ohio Railroad Co., Terminal Railroad Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad Co., Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis and Wiggins Ferry Co.

Several councilmen accepted an invitation to attend a special Civil Defense seminar in Effingham Jan. 26, 27 and 28 on improving civil defense readiness in city.

The December McKinley Bridge report showed 213,884 vehicles crossed the bridge during the month, an average of 6,899 per day.

contribution shows an annual decrease in tax payments to the levee district over the past five years. Through the years, Quad-City taxpayers have protested that while they were paying almost half of the total levee district tax bill, few levee district services were received in the Madison County sector of the district.

All major contracts were let to St. Clair County contractors. The East St. Louis office of the district employed about 80 regular employees, compared to 20 in the Granite City garage, and maintenance of the network of canals, ditches and pumping stations in St. Clair County represented about 80% of the work done by the bi-county district.

Tax records show that during the past ten years the Madison County area of the old East St. Louis district paid a total of $9,899,643 in taxes compared to $10,983,353 paid by the St. Clair County area.

The St. Clair County portion of the old district embraced East St. Louis, Canton, Centerville and Stites Townships.

On the basis of these figures, Quad-City taxpayers paid 48.8% of the total amount of tax money received by the East St. Louis district during the period 1962 through 1972.

The records also show that the Quad-City area of the old district paid a total of $1,018,338 during 1972, or $29,735 more than the $779,183 paid by St. Clair County taxpayers.

This means that during 1972, the Madison County portion of the old district paid 26% of the total of $1,797,941 taxes received by the district.

During the ten-year period, tax bills of the Quad-City taxpayers increased from a total of $686,136 in levee district taxes in 1963, to amounts well over the $1 million mark by 1972.

St. Clair County tax payments, which totaled $778,347 in 1963, increased past the $1 million mark in 1967, but have been declining from year to year since 1968.

Of the total taxes paid by Quad-Cityans during the ten-year period, $5,927,602 was paid by Granite City taxpayers. Venice Township paid $1,176,015 over the ten years, while Nameoki Township paid $2,828,104.

The Edwardsville Township taxes during that period amounted to $3,275, and Collinsville Township taxpayers paid $4,339 for levee district operations.

St. Clair County taxes have not been distributed by township collectors since 1965, so that most tax distributions to the levee district in recent years have been made directly by the county treasurer.

The figures show that in 1968, the peak year for taxes paid by both the Madison and St. Clair County portions of the district, St. Clair County taxes distributed to the levee district amounted to $1,413,244.

In that same year, taxes paid by Quad-City residents of the old levee district were $2,428,009, or $14,765 more than paid by St. Clair County.

Since the 1968 year, St. Clair County tax distributions to the old levee district fell back to $1,154,008 in 1969, a total of $1,143,610 in 1970, $1,131,240 in 1971 and down to $779,103 in 1972.

About 700 men and women started the mid-year term of Adult Education courses this week at Granite City High School, according to M. A. Wittebrong, administrative assistant. Vocational and Adult Education, who noted that a few opening remarks remain in specific classes.

A total of 306 new enrollments has been recorded for the second half of the 1972-73 year. Other students are continuing their education from night classes scheduled last semester, Wittebrong said.

JUVENILES QUESTIONED
Three Venice boys, ages 15, 12 and 11, are being questioned by Venice juvenile authorities about an attempted break-in at American Legion Post 799 at Mercedia Avenue and Douglas Street in Venice at 1:20 a.m. Wednesday. Police were summoned by a burglar alarm at the building and arrested the oldest boy nearby, officers said.

He was charged with a curfew violation. Questioning led to the arrests of the other youths at their home. The building was not entered but a window was broken, police said.

Class Action Suit To Be Filed on Tax Fund Rebates

A class action suit to require Madison County Treasurer George Musso to refund more than $1 million in tax collection fees to taxing districts in the county will be filed by R. W. Griffith, former county state's attorney, he announced this week.

Griffith, now attorney for the Alton School District, said he had asked Musso to return $192,000 due the school district, but was told by Musso that he first would require a court order to protect his action.

The Granite City School District would benefit more than the county as it is due $231,668.

Tax collection charges were withheld by Musso under a system adopted by the Madison County Board before a resolution passed by the board to place the tax collection fees unconstitutional in late November by Circuit Court James O. Monroe.

Judge Monroe ruled, however, that the taxing bodies must file suit before they can obtain refunds, and that the county could retain interest earned while the money was held pending the court decision.

The suit questioning the legality of the county resolution was filed by the City of Venice and joined by the Village of Rosalia and Wood River Township.

School district superintendents in the county have agreed that the class action suit should be the best method to recover the money.

Drainage

drainage project later will be rejected," the clerk commented. The board rescheduled its next regular meeting for Saturday, Jan. 20, advancing it from Monday, Jan. 22.

Township officials to attend a meeting in Edwardsville at which use of federal revenue sharing funds will be outlined. The board received a letter from Hays Mallory, County Board member, inviting township officials to the Jan. 20 meeting in the County Courthouse at which a representative of the Illinois State Department of Local Government Affairs will discuss permitted use of revenue funds and answer questions concerning the program.

Town Board Member Carl Musso suggested that the township establish a questionnaire listing the different uses to which revenue sharing funds may be put. Residents of the township will be asked to check their preferences for use of the funds and submit the marked forms to the town board.

Board members agreed this would give township officials a guideline to follow in determining the use of revenue sharing funds allotted the township. The board referred to Township Attorney William Schooley two checks received from township supervisor Harry Briggs, one for $20 and another for $50, in repayment of per diem fees which are to be recovered by the township. On a motion by Auditor Kenneth Gieson, Schooley was instructed by the board to demand full payment of a $800 settlement which was reached between attorneys for Briggs and the township.

Douglas Teator, town clerk, announced that Nameoki residents 65 years of age or older, who occupy property they own may obtain applications for real estate "homestead exemption" of $1,500 from Nameoki Assessor Joseph Cohan.

A bid of $292 for installation of a new gas furnace at the town hall, 420 Highway 162, was accepted by the board. Five bids were submitted.

Highway Commissioner Albert Bell reported that he had met with representatives of the Illinois Commerce Commission concerning long traffic halts by trains at railroad crossings and lack of signals or gates.

He said he was told that an engineering report would have to be made and that petitions would need to be circulated to bring the matter before the commission.

Teator told the meeting he plans to appoint a citizens' committee again this year to assist in preparation of the township budget.

Levee Order Is Modified

A modified injunction order under which the old East Side Levee and Sanitary District will be permitted to make levee improvements and emergency repairs. He said that under this ruling, the district temporarily in operation was entered at Edwardsville today by Circuit Judge William Beatty.

Seek Arbitration On Discharges

A United Steelworkers staff representative said yesterday the union is attempting to reverse firing of several hundred workers at the Castings Division of General Steel Industries.

"GSI on Dec. 29, effective Dec. 15, unilaterally discharged all employees of USA Local 1022 who were on layoff at that time," the Steelworkers official alleged.

"These discharges will have the immediate effect of terminating supplemental unemployment benefits, insurance benefits for both the employee and dependents, vacation benefits and pension benefits. This will have the effect of denying full benefits to some of the employees involved."

"The union has declared these discharges are in violation of the current contract, and has initiated grievance procedures to have such actions set aside."

"The union has waived the preliminary steps of the grievance procedure and requested immediate arbitration in order to resolve these disputes before further hardship is suffered by any of the discharged employees and their families."

A General Steel spokesman said today, "Discussions have been held and more will be scheduled on Jan. 15, 1973, concerning the plant closing."

Announcement was made last month that the Castings Division will be closed after current orders are filled in late 1973.

Steelworkers say their Jan. 15, 1973-Jan. 1973 agreement contains procedures that must be followed, even at a closed plant. Included are such as seniority for call-backs in the event a plant reopens during that period, they contend.

Bacon Packaging to Take on New Look

After Feb. 19, consumers need no longer buy a "pig in a poke" when they select a package of bacon.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has made two regulations changes that give purchasers added information on which to base their selections of bacon and cured meat products.

One regulation amends the requirement on bacon packaging. To comply with the new look, the opening in windowed packages of sliced bacon must be at least 1 1/2 inches wide and show at least 70 percent of the length of a representative strip of bacon.

Granite City PRESS-RECORD

Some processors already have been packaging bacon in transparent material that reveals the entire contents. But customer complaints involved those packages with windows that revealed only one edge of the bacon rather than a total strip. The new packages should give you a better idea of what you are buying.

The second regulation change requires that all cured meat or products containing cured meat be labeled to tell the consumer the ingredients used in the curing process.

In the past, cured meats have not had to carry ingredient statements because the USDA believed consumers generally knew that such products were made with meat and a simple curing solution. However, as more complex curing solutions have come into use, consumers may no longer be aware of the ingredients, USDA officials noted.

Bethel 43 Hosts Parents' Night; Pays Tribute to Dr. E. H. Theis

"Moms and Dads' night was observed by Bethel 43, Order of Job's Daughters, at a meeting Tuesday evening at the Masonic Temple. Miss Bella Blankenship, honored guest, presided.

Twenty-four parents and Bethel members were served refreshments following the assembly in the downstairs dining room, which was decorated in a blue and yellow color motif. Misses Marla White and Debbie Trokey served as co-chairmen of the decorating committee.

Miniature blue and yellow baskets filled with mints were used as favors. Center runners on the tables made of yellow and blue streamers were lined with arrangements of yellow roses and mums.

Mrs. Ruth Houser, president of the Mothers Club and her co-chairman, Mrs. Madelyn Pope, served a late buffet.

During the meeting, past honored guests were escorted and introduced. The group included Mrs. Eleanor Todoff, Miss Mickey Lynn Fritz, Mrs. Donna Theis and Miss Becky Graham. Miss Graham also was the special guest for the evening. Others presented were Mrs. Nell Baskette, guardian and Dr. Ames Reide, associate guardian.

Miss Sue Sackett, librarian, gave a reading, entitled "Roses Are Thorns."

Tentative plans were made for members to attend a movie, with a date to be set.

The queen's project for her six-month term of office will be a handmade quilt. It was announced. A replica of the quilt was displayed by Miss Blankenship at Tuesday's meeting.

Miss Fritz led a memorial service in the tribute to the late Dr. E. H. Theis, who served for 12 years as associate guardian of Bethel 43.

Appropriate cards were mailed to members and their families, Miss Kathy Lane, sunshine chairman, reported.

20 YEARS IN CHINA. Gerald Tannebaum (right), an American who lived in mainland China, and his wife Chen Yuan-chi, who is the only mainland Chinese citizen living permanently in the U. S., answer questions during their appearance at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville during China Awareness Week this week.

Motivation Spotlighted at 'China Awareness' Program

A fundamental difference between American and Chinese ways of life is worker motivation being based on recognition by one's colleagues — and the responsibilities one is assigned by the state in the People's Republic of China — according to William S. C. Chang, electronics professor at Washington University.

"Such a basis, differing from the financial reward which motivates the American worker, results in different attitudes toward higher education in mainland China than in the U.S.," Chang said in a speech Tuesday on "Higher Education in the People's Republic of China," part of China Awareness Week at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

"We found out that in China, there are really two kinds of education," said Chang. "A Chinese native who visited the mainland during 1972 for the first time in more than 20 years."

"One is really apprenticeship; people work in factories or in the fields until they learn what they need."

"On the other hand, formal education is available at the universities, but the Chinese are very particular about who is educated and the object of formal education," which Chang said tended toward applied rather than theoretical knowledge.

"For example," Chang said, "a philosophy student would be required to go to a commune to live and work among peasants in order to learn what they think and why they think that way," thus supplementing learning from books and teachers with practical experience.

Chang said the most fundamental changes in higher education came with the "Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution."

"Before 1966, most of the students in the universities were the children of intellectuals and those who were well-off," largely because entrance examinations discriminated against ignorant workers and peasants, who Chang said made up more than 90% of China's population.

During the Cultural Revolution, most of the universities were closed.

"After 1969, when the universities reopened, they began to accept a new kind of student," Chang said.

"They come from a variety of academic backgrounds, but preference is given to the children of workers and peasants who are themselves good workers."

"They are elected by their comrades to attend the universities and they are highly motivated — but academic background is not rated very highly in selection for university enrollment."

University programs last for three calendar years, with two weeks off for vacation in the summer. Professors are expected to join their students during practical work throughout the course of study.

"Some universities even have their own factories, run by students and faculty," Chang said. "The result is that the university graduate is much more narrowly educated than is an American student."

"But this student can go out and work right away, whereas in the U.S. typically the student has to have on-the-job training, no matter what his education, for at least a few months or a year."

In the main China Awareness Week address Monday, Chen Yuan-chi and her husband, Gerald Tannebaum, spoke on the impact of the Cultural Revolution on the arts.

"It is important for all artists in the People's Republic of China to remodel our outlook in order to serve the people," said Mrs. Tannebaum, a former actress from Shanghai currently working for the United Nations Secretariat and the only Communist Chinese citizen living permanently in the U.S.

"Artists in China are the pupils of the masses at the same time they are teaching the masses through their art," she said.

Because the role of the artist is to "unfetter and inspire the workers and peasants," she said, it is the responsibility of the artist to "revolutionize himself in order to express the feelings of the workers and peasants on stage."

Mrs. Tannebaum said the Cultural Revolution forced artists to live and work among ordinary people, to better understand them and their aspirations.

"Visitors to China often ask 'Why is drama or ballet in China so black-and-white, so obvious?' It is true that our revolutionary art is not sophisticated, but you must understand the audience," she said.

"Over 95% are workers and peasants; the way they view things is the way we must present them. Of course, you must elevate it, through your art, but you must start at this base."

Tannebaum, speaking after a showing of the film "Red Detachment of Women," a contemporary revolutionary Chinese opera, said art survived in China only because it was revolutionized. He said if art is unrelated to the struggle of the Chinese people, it is neither revolutionary nor "correct" politically.

Tannebaum, who went to China in 1945 with the U.S. Army, stayed there after his discharge at the request of Madame Sun Yat-sen.

He became executive director of her China Welfare Institute and lectured on American literature at Chinese universities before recently returning to the U.S. He married Chen Yuan-chi in 1962.

China Awareness Week will continue through Friday in the University Center on the SIUE campus. All events are open to the public free of charge.

Children Are a Major Investment But Worth the Cost—Mrs. Mauck

By CATHERINE R. MAUCK
Madison County Extension
Adviser—Home Economics

It may seem peculiar to think of your child as an expenditure, but the fact remains that children do represent a rather substantial family financial investment.

However, the returns on this investment are not measured in dollars and cents. In exchange, a child gives pride, love and a "bridging of the generation gap" to his parents.

The family's financial investment begins almost as the child's life begins. The maternity expenses may run $1,500 or more if the cost for the hospital room, delivery room and obstetrician are added together with the costs of mother's maternity wardrobe and baby's layette.

If a nurse or household help is employed when the baby comes home, the expense figure continues to climb. However, a second, third or fourth child is less expensive than Number One because the family already has much of the equipment.

After the birth, the costs of raising the child to adulthood begin. Each year tends to be progressively more expensive. Children need food, clothing, shelter, medical care and transportation. In addition, they will participate in developmental activities, such as music or dancing lessons.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of Labor Statistics have developed cost estimates for each year of a child's first 18 years of life and for the entire 18-year period.

On the average, during the first 18 years of life, the cost per child ranges from 14% to 17% of the family's income. Of course, the figure varies greatly according to where the family lives—city or rural area, East Coast or Midwest, and so forth.

Food and clothing expenditures increase most rapidly as a child grows.

Other categories of expenditures, such as housing and transportation, are distributed equally among family members. Therefore, the cost per child decreases.

Another aspect of the cost of raising children deals with the employment the mother gives up while she stays home to care for the children.

Even if she does return to work before the children are in school, the costs for a sitter must be taken out of her salary.

If the mother works, usually she must pay someone at least $1.60 to $2 an hour to clean the house and care for her children.

Retired Employees Install Officers

Retired Federal Employees' Chapter 1807, conducted installation ceremonies for newly elected 1973 officers and welcomed three new members at a meeting Monday at Kirkpatrick Homes Recreation Center.

New members are Mrs. Helen Martin, Clem Rogers and Oliver Corzine. Thirty-four members and a guest, Mrs. Gladys Messer, attended.

Walter Franklin read and discussed current tax legislation, specifically citing areas of interest to the retired federal employees.

Plans were announced for a Valentine party and business meeting, set Feb. 12 at the housing project recreation center.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS A. POWERS JR. They were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony at St. Elizabeth Roman Catholic Church. The former Miss Marie Elaina Boyle is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Boyle, 2549 Morrison Road.

Marie Elaina Boyle and Thomas Powers Are Wed

St. Elizabeth Roman Catholic Church was the scene of the wedding on Dec. 29 of Miss Marie Elaina Boyle, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Boyle, 2549 Morrison Road, and Perry Officer Third Class Thomas A. Powers Jr., U.S. Navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Powers Sr., 1417 Kirk St., Evanston, Ill.

A lighted Christmas tree, poinsettia clusters and burning tapers in candelabra at the altar and on both sides of the white carpeted aisle provided the setting for the double ring ceremony, performed by the Rev. Lawrence Mattingly at 6 o'clock in the evening.

Carol Bosack presided at the organ for Marianne Powers, a sister of the groom, who sang several selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the former Miss Boyle selected a bridal gown fashioned of white polyester sheer over tulle. Venise lace trimmed the bodice that was designed with a mandarin collar, camel sleeves and high rise waistline. The slightly gathered A-line skirt was edged in matching lace and satin ribbon, with the trimming repeated on the train, collar and cuffs of the long sleeves.

She wore a camelot hat accented with Venise lace to hold in place a cathedral-length veil of nylon illusion. Her crescent bouquet was an arrangement of white carnations, white roses, baby's breath and greenery festooned with white ribbon and streamers.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Janis Hagle, a sister of the bride, Miss Cathleen Powers, the groom's sister and the flower girl, Susan Bugle, a niece of the bride, were attired in identical dresses of ruby red velvet.

Their gowns were created in an Empire style with long fitted sleeves, jewel necklines, enhanced with white lace, and long softly gathered A-line skirts.

Each attendant wore a triple bow headpiece of ruby red velvet, securing a short veil in a matching color, and held a crescent shaped bouquet of pink carnations, red roses, baby's breath and white streamers.

The groom chose Paul Schmitt to serve as best man, Dave Bremner, George Bugle, the bride's brother-in-law, and Timothy Powers, a brother of the groom, completed the corps of groomsmen and ushers, Steven Bugle, a nephew of the bride, was the ringbearer.

Mrs. Boyle wore a strawberry pink formal length gown in crepe, with long chiffon sleeves. Her pastel pink accessories were complemented with a pink cymbidium orchid corsage.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Powers, chose a floor-length dress made with a green satin skirt and an off-white chiffon bodice with long sleeves.

Misses Janet Webb and Kristy Krekovic presided at the guest register during a reception at Holy Trinity Hall in Madison following the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Powers, entertained the wedding party and their families at a rehearsal dinner at Charlie's Restaurant on the evening preceding the wedding.

A graduate of Granite City High School, the bride is attending Loyola University School of Nursing from where she will graduate in June.

The groom also attended Loyola University and is now a peribary groomsmen and ushers, Steven Bugle, a nephew of the bride, was the ringbearer.

Out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Powers and children, Tim, Marianne, Theresa, Catherine and Frances, all of Evanston, Ill.; William Powers and children, Bill, Steve, Joan and Lisa of Wilmette, Ill.; Sister Louise French, Sister Frances Dolan, Miss Carol Bosack, Miss Demetra John, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schmitt and David Bremner, all of Chicago, and Mrs. Lawrence Boreczek of Portland, Ore.

Artists Appear at Studio Opening

The formal opening and dedication of St. Cecilia Music Studio, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacDonald, 1729 Primrose Ave., was held late last week, with the Rev. Wilbur Leary, pastor of St. Bartholomew Episcopal Church, in charge of arrangements.

Assisting at the dedication were the Rev. Lawrence Mattingly and the Rev. John Savoree, both of St. Elizabeth Roman Catholic Church, and the Rev. Edwin Phillips of Sacred Heart Polish National Catholic Church.

Guest artist was Dr. Ronald Arnatt, organist and choirmaster of Christ Church Cathedral in St. Louis. He played an all-Bach program, consisting of several chorale preludes of the Christmas and Epiphany seasons and concluding with "Fantasia" and "Fugue in C Minor."

At the conclusion of the recital, Miss Young Bang Cho of Korea, played the first movement of the Schumann's "Piano Concerto in A Minor," with Dr. Arnatt performing the orchestral portion on the organ.

The guests were served a buffet supper by Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald following the program.

Others present were Mrs. Robert Kozielek, Misses Beth Leubetter, Nancy McCommis, Ellen Buda and Lisa Groothuis, Dan Vizer, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Weissmann of St. Louis, and Miss Elsie MacDonald of Washington, D. C., a sister of the host.

Carl Huenken was elected president of the Senior Hilltoppers Club of St. John United Church of Christ at a meeting Tuesday afternoon. Also named was Mrs. Helen Schaefer, who will serve as secretary.

The retiring president, Mrs. Calais Knipping, conducted the 1 o'clock meeting. She announced the Feb. 13 get-together will be combined with a Valentine party, featuring a catered dinner at noon.

Mrs. Knipping introduced two new members, William Branding and Fred Strackeljaht. After the business session, 31 members played games and several prizes were awarded. A dessert luncheon was served and the Rev. Dr. Paul Surbey offered the closing prayer.

The installation of the newly elected officers, as well as the dedication of those remaining in office for another year, was conducted by the president.

The growing list of community commitments to which Church Women United is dedicated was discussed, with a brief review of each area being presented by its chairman.

Reports were given by the project leaders or their representatives, including Mrs. Leonard Roberts, Days of Celebration; Mrs. Vivien Cherry, Friends in Learning; Mrs. John Schradler, Nearly New Clothing Center; Mrs. Hezzie Todd for Mrs. Frank Ehler, Layettes; Mrs. Rupp, CROP, Church World Service; Mrs. Adolph Richter, Fellowship of the Least Coin; Mrs. William Richardson, trans-

Area Tax Bodies Get 2nd Revenue Sharing Checks

Federal revenue sharing checks for the last half of the 1972 year have been mailed at Washington, D. C., and will total $466,676 for townships and municipalities in the Quad-City area, it was reported today.

The second 1972 allotment also includes $400,845 for the Madison County government. All taxing agencies eligible for the funds in Madison County will receive a total of $1,515,223. The payments include $241,205 for Granite City, $23,986 for Venice, $43,811 for Madison and $3,823 for Pontoon Beach among the allotments to cities and villages.

Township allotments are $37,168 for Granite City Township, $22,715 for Venice Township, $21,662 for Nameoki Township and $13,306 for Chouteau Township.

The checks now being received by area taxing bodies completes the federal revenue sharing payments for all of last year. Checks for the first half of 1972 were received in December.

Hereafter the allotments will be mailed on a quarterly basis.

Pollution Board Sets New Hearing Locations

The Illinois Pollution Control Board has changed the sites for its remaining hearings on proposed animal waste regulations to accommodate the expected large numbers of livestock producers and others.

Attendance at earlier hearings at Rockford and Galesburg far exceeded the capacity of the hearing rooms and the board has secured larger quarters as sites for the three remaining hearings.

An estimated 900 to 1,000 persons attended the Rockford and Galesburg hearings in December, according to F. Wayne Baughman, coordinator of environmental affairs for the Illinois Agricultural Association.

Baughman said the pollution control board has set the following hearing schedule: January 11—John Deere Auditorium, Moline, 9 a.m.; January 26—Annie Merner Chapel, MacMurray College, Jacksonville, 10 a.m.; and February 1—Ballroom "D," Student Center, SIU Campus, Carbondale, 10 a.m.

Baughman said the Farm Bureau is encouraging livestock producers to testify at the hearings on the possible need for animal waste regulations. He said the proposed regulations are designed to provide a basis for hearing purposes only and should not be construed to be the final decision on the subject.

Following the hearings, the Illinois Pollution Control Board will review and analyze the data accumulated to determine if there is a need for regulations and, if so, what the provisions should be.

Supreme Court Approves Merger Of GM&O and IC

The U. S. Supreme Court upheld the merger of the Illinois Central and Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroads into the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad in a ruling issued Monday. Both lines operate in this area.

The high court refused to hear challenges to the merger which took effect last Aug. 9 after approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission was upheld by a lower court.

Objections to the merger had been filed by the Missouri Pacific Railroad and the Kansas City Southern Railway, but these were dismissed in a lower court.

Kansas City Southern fought the merger as it wanted rights to operate its trains over certain tracks of the merged lines.

Missouri Pacific was opposed because of long-standing stock interest in the Illinois Central by the Union Pacific Railroad, its competitor, fearing that the merged line would direct connecting rail traffic to Union Pacific rather than Missouri Pacific.

The ICC had approved a plan in which Union Pacific placed its stock interest in trust with a promise to divest it within 10 years. The commission also ruled that Kansas City Southern failed to establish a need for the track rights it sought.

New GC Meter Record Set in 1972—By $2

A new record in revenue from parking meters in Granite City was set during 1972 in Granite City, but only by $2. The year's total collections, $30,826, compares to the former record of $30,826 set during 1970. In 1971, collections totaled $48,949.

The total, although a record, fell short of what city officials had expected. At the end of November, collections in 1972 exceeded 1970 collections during the same period by $1,952, and Christmas shoppers were expected to push the total to an even larger record. Instead, only $3,768 was collected in December 1972, compared to $3,718 in the same month of 1970.

Collections last month were $3,419 in meter fees and only $349 in fines, the lowest total fines of any month in the year. Meters operated 25 days in December and the average daily collection was $150.

Amounts collected each month during 1972 were: January, $3,702; February, $4,505; March, $4,479; April, $3,898; May, $3,330; June, $5,588; July, $3,877; August, $4,468; September, $3,582; October, $4,133; November, $5,478; December, $3,768.

Annual totals during the past 10 years were: 1963, $38,306; 1964, $38,811; 1965, $38,629; 1966, $47,311; 1967, $46,307; 1968, $45,145; 1969, $47,147; 1970, $50,826; 1971, $48,494, and $1972, $50,828.

Birth and Death Rates Show Decline in 1972

A steady decline in the birth and death rates in the Quad-Cities continued during 1972 as the number of births here was the fewest since 1967 and the number of deaths was the fewest since 1965, according to a vital statistics report released this week by Robert W. Stevens, clerk of Granite City.

A total of 1,076 births was reported during the year, fewer than 1,189 in 1971 and the 1,267 births during 1970. The records date back to 1967 before a lower number of births can be found.

Deaths also continued to decline in 1972 with a total of 411, the fewest since 408 deaths were reported in 1965. The number in 1972 was three less than the 414 deaths in 1971 but was 36 less than the 447 in 1970.

The number of fetal deaths reported in the Quad-Cities likewise showed a reduction with 19 reported in 1972, the fewest since six were recorded in 1966. Thirteen fetal deaths were reported each year in 1970 and 1971.

The number of births each month last year, from January to December, were: 85, 74, 79, 79, 100, 91, 92, 107, 102 and 101.

The number of deaths each month, starting with January, were: 37, 37, 32, 31, 39, 25, 38, 37, 31, 27, 41 and 36. Fetal deaths, by months, were: 0, 2, 2, 0, 0, 0, 2, 1, 0, 0 and 3.

Screened-In Porch Has Decorating Possibilities

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

Q. We have a big old screened in porch that we'd like to give a new lease on life to.

A. It has a great deal of possibilities. Nobody loves it. What colors should we use and where should we start?

Q. What about something at the screens even though we don't need privacy? We will paint or do whatever is necessary to give the porch a personality. — W.

A. If your screened in porch looks out on a garden as many do, what about a snappy green and white color scheme?

Maybe you could find a green and white print to cover one of your cast-off pieces of furniture — a sofa, perhaps.

Do chair pads for a couple of inexpensive reed chairs in the same zippy print.

Antique in white, green and maybe watermelon some of the old wood furniture.

At the windows how about a trellage that you could put across the screens to finish the windows but eliminate the need for any other window treatment.

Paint them crisp white and apply the same trellage material to the ceiling and walls if it isn't beyond your budget.

You might add a watermelon colored string hammock for a light touch.

Q. We were just recently married and are trying to furnish our living room.

We have a funny old Spanish chest and two gorgeous copies of low modern chairs.

We think we'd like to add a love seat and perhaps a coffee table.

We like rather modern things but also are fascinated by inexpensive old things we can fix up. Where do we go from here?

— C.A.

A. Since you have a pair of modern chairs and an old wood piece, why not tie them together with a transitional, no-period love seat — one with a rolled arm and soft fabric that invites curling up in.

This would be good contrast with the sleek modern chairs.

You might choose a glass topped coffee table. It would look well with both old and new.

Under it why not use a contemporary bright shaggy rug or a patterned oriental to send color and visual excitement.

Either would be appropriate and would allow you to create a conversational grouping.

Q. I have a lot of blue and white in my kitchen as well as cherry red.

The room does not have a patriotic red, white and blue theme because the red is more purple than tomato.

What color might I use for my cabinets? I have lots of them and I don't want them cherry, blue or white.

They are knotty cedar and are turning a terrible orange. — W.B.

A. You well might choose to do them in, a deep, warm brown.

That would look particularly well with your cherry, white and blue.

Or you could bleach them out to a very pale blond color for a more contemporary look.

Or a third choice would be to do them in a whitish wash that would give them a sort of weathered white look yet not be a sterile white.

Q. We're living in an apartment — and hopefully for only a couple of years.

There is a nice view out of a window in the kitchen and it would be a great place to install a breakfast bar against this plain wall.

But our lease forbids it. Our table is too big for there.

What could we do to jazz up this space so close to the kitchen that is only really wide enough for a stool or so? — A.E.T.

A. You well might create a breakfast bar by investing in a very narrow Parsons' table.

Some are available unfinished and are quite inexpensive.

You could place it under the window for a breakfast bar. Add a couple of stools for sitting and then push them under the table when you aren't dining there.

Use bright colors for your table and stools and you could lend an interesting note to the plain wall yet not attach anything permanently.

Full State-City Cooperation Vital in Temporary Drainage Plan, Later Program and Problem of Ditch Access to Lake

What stand should be taken by Granite City, Nameoki Township, Ponton Beach, the Madison Levee and Sanitary District, Madison County and Illinois toward alleviation of storm-water drainage?

A fully positive and cooperative attitude is the only tenable approach, either practically or morally. People are in genuine need of help and there must be constructive, immediate steps to assist them.

Granite City is in no position to say, "Go elsewhere with your problems." City policies for a long time worsened the drainage woes of unincorporated Doherty Slough and adjacent incorporated territory. It is this same geographic area which would be aided by the temporary flood relief plan outlined at

Terrorism Threatens Not Only Lives and Ransom But Also Society's Respect for Itself and for Orderly Rule by Law

Comment by L. Patrick Gray III, acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation — Terrorism, from whatever source or for whatever reason, is a pitiless and inhuman act.

Bred from fanatic fear and blinded by hatred, it reveals man in his most evil nature.

It is a tribute to man—and fortunate for society—that terrorism has not attracted more advocates throughout history.

That it exists at all, however, is an ugly reminder of man's imperfections. Moreover, it is stark evidence of how passions unrestrained by reason can warp civilization's essential asset, the rule of law.

The shocking brutality of recent terrorist acts conducted on a global scale was focused for many to witness through the gripping television coverage in September of the XX Olympiad.

The senseless drama which claimed the lives of athletes there awakened people everywhere to the horror of terrorism.

Expressing the outrage shared in many capitals throughout the world, the Congress of the United States swiftly adopted a resolution sternly condemning "... any people or any nation giving sanctuary, support, sympathy, aid or comfort to acts of terrorism or barbarism such as those at Munich."

The President responded to the challenge of these events by creating a Cabinet-level committee within the

Illinois Site Only One at Which St. Louis Can Meet Its Air Travel Needs; No Other Actual Alternatives

(Airport World)

While nearly every other major metropolitan region in the country struggles to find a new airport, St. Louis is fortunate to have a new airport site already in place. The problem of Nameoki drainage ditch adequacy should be met head-on, but not by closing the ditch to any and all needing drainage. There are ways to improve ditch control gates, the surface and size of the ditch, its access to Horseshoe Lake, the lake level and the rate of flow into the lake.

Full meshing of state and local initiative can deal with these important considerations as well as the temporary Doherty-Vesci-Lynch San program for which City Council approval Jan. 15 is essential.

As a member of that committee, I have most carefully examined the FBI's responsibilities to insure that every precaution is taken in our investigation in order to expose terrorists and their plans.

Our first line of defense against lawlessness of all degrees is—as it always has been—the alertness and decisiveness of the thousands of dedicated local and State law enforcement agencies across our land.

Our energy and devotion they display in fulfilling their manifold duties are the best means of detecting and deterring terrorists in our midst. You may be sure that in matters outside FBI jurisdiction we will extend to our brother law enforcement agencies at all levels every assistance within our authority—in the intensified effort to bring prompt apprehension and certain punishment to any engaging in terrorist acts.

Terrorism is by no means a solely foreign menace. Sadly, our country has had its share of those who practice this loathsome art.

Our awareness must concern itself with terrorists of every persuasion and from every quarter.

We cannot afford to do less, for they challenge the very heart of law enforcement duty—protection of the community.

When terrorism succeeds, society loses more than lives or ransom—it loses respect for itself and confidence in its law enforcement sentinels.

Never mind that Missouri taxpayers can avoid the burden of the cost of a new airport. The proposed site in Missouri, or at any such site would have to be 40 or 50 miles away from the city center to avoid airspace conflicts with Lambert Field.

Never mind that St. Louis Mayor A. J. Cernanovsky and other community leaders favor the site.

It's still in Illinois, though all alternatives appear to be untenable.

Parting Look at Ogilvie Paradox

Governor Daniel Walker began his term at noon Monday and will occupy the center of the stage of Illinois government for the next four years.

The spotlight appropriately will begin to focus on the new administration. But it seems justified to first take a parting look at the four-year tenure which came to an end this week—the reign of Richard Ogilvie.

An apparent paradox is the Ogilvie record—widely regarded as exceptional—outstanding. If he was so good, why did he lose?

In endorsing him for re-election, the Press-Record editorialized, "Illinois' Greatest Governor Deserves to Be Re-Elected." There were similar accolades in other sections of the state.

Points included leadership in the successful adoption of the first new Illinois constitution in several years, initiation of direct state revenue sharing with local and local-level government, and pioneering efforts that helped lead to the start of federal revenue sharing.

Under a nearly bankrupt state, Gov. Ogilvie placed its finances in better order through spending controls, leadership in creating a state income tax and formation of a new budgeting process which eliminated much waste and duplication.

State aid to schools was more than doubled.

Funds for junior colleges, state universities and scholarships were boosted significantly. A new senior state university was opened in Springfield and others were established at Park Forest.

Southern Illinois University was permitted to create a medical school and a dental school, the latter in Madison County.

A state-supported experimental junior college was opened in East St. Louis.

Major reforms in mental health were carried out, with appropriations to over 100 community clinics doubled in two years. Decentralization of care enabled patient populations to be reduced at overcrowded, well-humiliated state hospitals.

Many geriatric patients were transferred to nursing homes, and work was started on seven new residential care centers for the retarded.

Under Gov. Ogilvie's leadership, 56,428 acres of new park land were acquired and efforts were begun on creating state parks "where the people are."

Horseshoe Lake State Park was approved after similar plans had been frustrated by several past governors.

More than 2,000 campsites were built in parks and recreation areas.

Benefits for workers were increased markedly.

Illinois began to place appropriate emphasis on the creative arts, and became a financial leader of this region's most outstanding cultural asset, the annual Mississippi River Festival summer concert series at St. Louis.

The governor secured passage of bills to form new departments of corrections, law enforcement and local government affairs.

By executive order, he created the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission and obtained General Assembly approval for an Illinois Bureau of Investigation.

It was not only a lack of imagination that was the cause of the "Ogilvie paradox." Factfulness in dealing with the many who call at the governor's Capitol office was not a strong point of the staff.

Our own conflicts confirm it—an able, congenial man too often surrounded by over-protective, almost antagonistic assistants.

It is a sad footnote to a sparkling governmental service career—and to a four-year record as governor that will be hard for any successor to match in four—or even eight—years.

Rumors of sale of the Union Starch and Refining Co. are described as unfounded.

Danger rides the school bus... Injuring more than 3,500 school children each year in school bus accidents in a single year some 75 children die in school bus accidents.

Billions can be spent in designing and building new buses, but Howard C. Mofenson, chairman of the American Academy of Pediatrics Committee on Accident Prevention, suggests spreading the money is available to improve the buses now in use. He recommends padding seat rails and hiring an adult (in addition to the bus driver) to monitor the children on the bus, supervise them as they get on and off and enforce a "no standing" rule. According to Mofenson, it is unrealistic to expect one person to be able to drive and supervise a busload of children.

Parents can help, too, says the National Safety Council, by encouraging their children to leave the house early so they don't rush into an accident. 2. Use handrails. 3. Take their seats quickly. 4. Keep books, lunch pails, etc. out of the aisles. 5.

Expanded Waterborne Transportation Could Prevent Intercity Freight Crisis Predicted Within Decade

By L. EDGAR PRINA
Copley News Service

Washington — The Maritime Administration foresees an intercity freight crisis before the decade ends, but says the long-neglected domestic segment of the American merchant marine can be made ready to steam to the rescue.

Economists project an increase in freight movements of 100% in the total transportation needs of the United States within the next 10 years, and many pressures are expected on domestic systems—waterborne, rail and motor.

Sansone contended policy-makers must discover and implement ways to achieve higher volumes of freight flows at lower unit cost to the users and the rest of the community.

He believes he has one answer.

"The expanded utilization of domestic waterborne transportation could relieve much of the load from the railroads whose systems have been bogged down and overburdened," he said.

"Much of the traffic that water has lost to the land modes over the last three decades could move more economically by water."

"The domestic water

transportation network which has been underutilized for several decades is best able to provide the future transport capacity required.

The vast waterway system which comprises 25,000 miles of navigable channels is for the most part unexploited and amenable to increased traffic flows."

The Maritime Administration official noted the environmental advantages of waterborne transport.

Pointing out that this capacity could be expanded "without requiring highway, truck or pipeline construction which often times has undesirable social and ecological effects," he said:

"Recent studies show that water transport has the lowest per-ton-mile effect on the environment when based on per ton-mile of goods moved."

"Noise levels of vessels when compared to the movement of goods by truck or train are 75% lower."

The results show that ships produce 33% less air pollutants than diesel trucks and 37% less than diesel trucks, when compared on a basis of ton-miles per gallon of fuel consumed."

Record 1972 Mail Volume; Revenue Gaining on Costs

Postmaster General E. T. Klassen has announced that postal revenues, fees and income for the first year of the U.S. Postal Service provided 84% of total costs.

The increase is up from an average 80% for the three-year period 1969-71.

It meant that the Postal Service—in its first year of reorganization—required $1.3 billion in a direct Congressional appropriation, down 34.8% from a high of $2.08 billion in 1971.

"We have pursued two major goals: Improve the quality and reliability of main services and reduce costs," Klassen said.

His comment was voiced as he submitted the first annual report to the Board of Governors since the Postal Service was created July 1, 1971, with a mandate to be self-sustaining by 1984.

Revenues totaled $7.8 billion in fiscal year 1972, up 18.3% from 1971, while operating expenses amounted to $9.5 billion, up 6.3%.

Americans mailed a record 87.2 billion pieces of mail last year, or 419 per capita, up from 87 billion pieces in 1971. Most of the mail—49 billion pieces—was first class.

Klassen said 84% of the first-class mail deposited by 9 p.m. and destined for local delivery is being delivered the next day. The percentage of next-day delivery is usually even higher in smaller communities.

"Another indicator of improved service was a reduction in the average time for delivery," the postmaster general reported.

"Without regard to the time of day when the letter was deposited or to the distance sent, the average time for delivering each of the 49 billion first-class letters decreased from 1.7 to 1.6 days."

In the parcel post category, he said, the average time for delivery decreased from 4.9 days during the final quarter of 1971 to 4.3 days in the final quarter of 1972.

As of last June 30, Klassen said, the average postal employee was earning "more than $12,000 annually in salary and benefits."

Labor costs comprised 85% of Postal Service costs.

Hiring restrictions imposed last March 28 resulted in postal employment dropping through attrition by more than 33,000 persons in the next four months. At the end of fiscal 1972, employment totaled 706,400.

At the same time, Klassen said, "We achieved a significant 2.4% productivity gain in the fiscal year ending June 30. This productivity figure contrasts sharply with averaging less than one percent annually through most of the 1960s."

The combination of increased productivity and a commitment by postal managers, particularly in the field, to hold in line the service last summer to forego the need for a previously budgeted $450 million in postage rate increases scheduled for January 1973, he related.

Only second-class mail—generally used by newspapers, magazines and other publications—plus non-profit third-class mail and educational and library materials sent fourth-class did not pay their own way, the annual report stated.

Intra-county second-class mail received a 73.8% subsidy.

Outside-the-county regular rate publications received a 51.7% subsidy; classroom publications, 71.9%; and non-profit publications, 81.2%.

Bulk rate non-profit third-class mail received 62.8% subsidy; educational fourth-class matter got a 37.5% subsidy and library materials, 67.5%. Congress has phased out increases in these categories of mail over the next five to ten years.

Steel Industry Wages Set Record During October

Washington—Domestic steelmakers paid out a one-month record of $51,015,000 in wages and salaries during October—despite the fact that industry employment declined slightly.

American Iron and Steel Institute reported.

October's wage and salary outlays were $16,844,000 above the September figure of $46,171,000. Through the first 10 months of 1972, such payments totaled $430,988,000.

At the same time, the institute said, the number of persons engaged in the production and marketing of steel dipped for the third straight month. They totaled 483,340 in October, down from September's 486,480 and the year's high of 491,051 set in July.

However, during October of last year, only 228,088 such employees were on steel company payrolls, as industry employment approached a 32-year low.

Highlights of the institute's steel industry employment report include: Total employment in the steel industry rose 1.1% in October, to 483,340, compared with $6.26 average for 1971.

VD Cases Are Increasing, Educator Tells Jaycees

An increase in the number of venereal disease cases is cause for serious concern and stepped-up education of young people in preventive measures, knowledge of symptoms and what assistance is available to those contracting the disease is essential, Dr. Nancy Parker told Granite City Jaycees at their January meeting.

Members of the young men's service club and their wives attending a meeting at the Jaycee Clubhouse on Poplar Street heard Dr. Parker's presentation.

The same program, which includes a film and literature, is available to high school age youth, a Jaycee spokesman said.

An assistant professor in the Department of Biological Science at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, Dr. Parker attended the meeting at the special invitation of the local Jaycees.

She received her bachelor of arts degree from Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis., in 1959 and a Ph.D. in 1965 from the University of Texas in Austin, where she held teaching assistantships during the 1961-62 terms.

The educator also is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the American Society of Zoologists.

In addition to the educational program, several awards were presented club members by Gerald Gann, first vice-president.

"Jaycees of the Month" awards were achieved by Em-met Meador, the August winner; Jim Thrane, who organized a trip to a St. Louis Cardinal baseball game for underprivileged children; September, David Partney, who conducted a successful mock election, October; Darrell Weible, coordinator of a joint "Save Our Sight" program with the Granite City Kiwanis Club, November; and Wayne Worthen, organizer of the annual "Bowling Sweepstakes" contest, December.

"Jaycees of the Quarter" honorees were bestowed upon Darrell Weible, whose efforts in several club-sponsored projects were considered "outstanding," Gann said.

Other year-end "Certificates of Appreciation" went to Earl Warnhoff, chairman of the Jaycees' 25th anniversary celebration; Owen Ross, Junior Sports Ambassador; coordinator, and Mickey Patton, Emilene Meador, Janis Weible and Marilyn Worthen, who assisted in the "sweepstakes" project.

About 40 Jaycees and their guests enjoyed a social hour and refreshments following the awards ceremony.

Media Growth Helped Form 'Youth Culture'

By KENNETH J. RABBE
Copley News Service

Building educational institutions for more than a thousand people increases student alienation, says one of the nation's foremost authorities on school effectiveness.

Dr. James S. Coleman, professor of social relations at the Johns Hopkins University, also indicated that the quality of a high school education decreases as the school's size increases.

He told a regional meeting at the university in Baltimore of the quality of a high school education decreases as the school's size increases.

"In most of these schools, teachers don't know the names of their students. Students do not feel they can turn to a teacher."

After collecting the most data about schools and pupils in the nation's history about seven years ago, Coleman debunked many of education's most cherished notions with publication in 1966 of "Equality of Educational Opportunity."

It sparked a major reevaluation of the nation's schools.

Many of the conclusions in what is known as "The Coleman report" were confirmed in 1972 in two books published by social scientists at Harvard University.

For the last 18 months, Coleman has been studying youth cultures in the United States as head of a presidential advisory panel on science.

"One of the unfortunate aspects of the structure of American education is the 'trickle down' demands created by universities, that establish the character of high schools and then down to elementary school requirements."

"Parental demands would be different if college demands were different."

Although Coleman does not believe there is one massive youth culture, he has identified three common threads: a tendency for youth to look inward, a psychic attachment to others their own age, and pressure toward autonomy.

Yesterday's young adult heroes were athletes, but today's young Americans admire peers who buck the Establishment even if they disagree with their philosophy.

Expanded access to free mass public education through college and beyond:

Greater access to and proliferation of mass communication; increased affluence and leisure time;

A population maturing earlier than ever, but being kept longer in children's institutions;

Laws preventing economic exploitation of the young and companions have helped create the youth cultures.

These factors have kept young adults together and away from older and younger Americans longer than ever.

Youth did not seek this state of affairs. It was imposed by adult society, Coleman believes.

Increased television viewing.

ing, the growth of "underground" newspapers and magazines, the proliferation of youth-oriented radio in particular and motion pictures aimed at youth adults take communications from the old face-to-face format to the instant exchange of ideas across town and country.

It only could have happened in the United States where the press clings precariously to dwindling freedom.

Proliferation of communications is one of the most important factors in the creation of youth cultures, Coleman said.

"Before, adults had a near-monopoly of communication. This is changing and it will do so even more. This will strengthen and maintain anti-establishment views."

Television and mass media turned deviant cultures into anti-establishment views.

As channels of communications opened, the norms became confused and youth cultures gained strength from the confusion of deviant behavior."

At the same time, young Americans now have the money to support their values in the marketplace, Coleman said.

When psychic needs no longer were met by the family, young adults turned increasingly to a close circle of friends and communal groups.

"The experience of the generation is important to the growth of youth and is to be encouraged," he added.

He does not subscribe to the theory that youth can't "lick 'em, join 'em."

"The young turn to adults and very often they are not impersonal."

"Children have grown up without a close relationship to any adult except their parents who are authority figures."

"Parents should not take personal blame, but should try to overcome this."

"The structure of institutions—their size—should be changed."

Coleman would like to see organizations producing goods and services whose age range reflects society's.

He was asked what would happen if young adults do grow out of the youth culture. "Then there will not be a generation gap," Coleman replied.

SIUE Has Everything; Even Mushroom Hunters' Club

Freezing weather does not deter avid mushroom collectors, if A. Dudley Curry is at all typical.

Curry, an education professor at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, is trying to form a club of persons interested in collecting wild mushrooms and preparing them for eating. He hopes to begin this month.

"Mushrooms aren't as prolific in winter as in other seasons, but some come into evidence in very cold weather," Curry said.

Curry, who came to SIUE in 1960, has been collecting and preparing mushrooms for the table since he moved to this area. He and his wife Frances became interested through her mother, who has been collecting mushrooms in Missouri for several decades.

"There are some kinds of mushrooms in all seasons," Curry said. "Hunting more mushrooms in the spring is kind of a Midwest custom."

In the summer, the season for most mushrooms, Curry finds many kinds, including ink caps, shaggy manes and chanterelles. In the fall, varieties of the fall meadow mushrooms come up in pastures, fields and mowed areas.

Searching is part of the fun, but preparing the mushrooms for eating is fun, too, Curry said.

"You can use mushrooms in almost any way," he said. "We usually saute them and eat them as a dish by themselves. But you can freeze them, pickle them or use them in stews and salads. The fall meadow mushrooms are the kind you buy in the store; only the ones we pick are fresh."

Curry said he finds many mushrooms on the SIUE campus or near his home in rural Edwardsville. But his mushroom searches have extended as far north as the Georgian Bay-Lake Huron area of Canada, where he and his wife vacation in the summer.

Whenever he hunts mushrooms, he observes some basic rules, the most important of which concerns poisonous mushrooms.

"The first rule is never to pick and eat a mushroom you can't positively identify," Curry said. "There aren't a lot of poisonous varieties, so it's best to learn them early in the game."

Curry said there are numerous books on mushrooms with keys that allow identification through scientifically classified traits. A relatively simple method of identification is accomplished through spore prints; the collector removes the stem of the mushroom and places the mushroom cap on a piece of paper. The spores under the cap leave a color on the paper, and identification of the mushroom can be made by its color.

Curry is concerned about more than collecting and eating mushrooms — he is worried about the effects of air and water pollution on fungi, because all mushrooms are fungi. "Serious pollution could cause problems if it harmed fungus production; fungi bread down organic materials into soil components," Curry said. "This is a problem I'd like to see studied by scientists. It would be a good project for a graduate student at this University."

Persons interested in forming a mushroom club may call Curry at his home (618-696-5129) or see him at the foundations of education department in the General Office Building at SIUE.

"Through the formation of the club we hope to share expertise and extend our knowledge about mushrooms," Curry said.

Music Business Booms, Expected to Increase

By DONALD DIERKS
Copley News Service

In the good old days, if you were in the retail music business the band instrument was king. Shiny cornets, saxophones and slide trombones were what every kid wanted to play and there was a big market.

The potential customers among young people did not just happen. Indeed, it may be said that the American school band movement was more the result of careful promotion and development by band instrument manufacturers and their retail outlets, than it was the studied invention of music teachers and curriculum experts.

By the 1930s, virtually every city and hamlet in the country had a school band with flashy uniforms, prancing majorettes and a booster club of admiring parents.

Meredith Wilson, who grew up in a small Iowa town, wrote "The Music Man" with obvious personal knowledge.

In his popular musical it is the unmusical character of Harold Hill who sells band instruments in tiny midwestern villages with the promise to teach the local kids how to play them. As we know, it was his practice to skip town with the money before the lessons had to begin.

More Sophisticated
Salesmen and customers are more sophisticated today, but school bands continue to occupy a place on curricula. Bandmen also remain an important consumer group for the music industry.

Times change, however, and some music educators have begun to question just how culturally enriching big football marching bands really are. The quality of concert band literature is also a matter of question in the minds of some educators.

For their parts, young people seem to be shifting their musical interests, or, if youthful interests are not actually changing they are at least expanding. The representative of a music store put it this way, "Our band instrument sales have remained much the same as always in recent years, but we have had a revolution in sales for all kinds of guitars and amplifying systems. The growth has been phenomenal."

The revolution spoken of began with the Beatles almost a decade ago and has gained momentum annually. Pops and rock concerts are more popular than ever and, of course, instrument makers have been quick to cash in on the wave of enthusiasm.

In 1960, for example, 420,000 fretted instruments (guitars and banjos) and amplifiers were sold. Last year this number had increased to 2.6 million units amounting to a dollar value of more than $500 million. According to American Music Conference president Ted McCarty, sales of all types of instruments hit an all-time high in 1971, with a total volume of $1.1 billion. McCarty believes that total volume for 1972 may have risen by as much as 12 per cent.

Spent More Money
While population experts estimate a drop in the number of children between the ages of 5 to 13, the principal market for musical instruments, trade observers believe that smaller families will mean that parents can spend more money on fewer children for nonessential items — organs, pianos, drums and elaborate amplifying systems.

A few of the old-line names in instrument making continue much as they did in Prof. Harold Hill's day. Chicago's Ludwig Industries, Inc., a big manufacturer of percussion instruments, is still run by the founder, 92-year-old William F. Ludwig.

Gemeinhardt, of Elkhart, Ind., a maker of flutes and piccolos, is still an independent operation, as is the Harmony Co. of Chicago, which turns out a half-million fretted instruments annually.

Many other famous names, however, have been incorporated into large, publicly owned firms. The operations of Selmer, one of the leading band instrument producers, are hidden in the commerce of Selmer, Magnavox, and Chicago Musical Instruments was bought three years ago by the Norton Co., a Panama-based company.

Ringier Art Exhibit On Display This Week

"Ringierworks" is the title of the Dennis Ringier exhibit which went on display this week in the lobby of the Communications Building at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. The show will run through Feb. 2.

Ringier earned his B.S. degree from Eastern Illinois University and his M.F.A. from the University of Colorado. Before coming to SIUE as an assistant professor he held that rank at the University of Hawaii.

His show at SIUE includes 14 drawings and 12 paintings, which include samples of work with sprayed acrylic color fields done on plexiglass.

Ringier, who received several awards for his work while at the University of Hawaii, received the $500 purchase award last fall from the Evansville Museum of Arts and Sciences.

Poster Contest Is Planned for Students

The Lewis-Clark Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association will begin promotion of the sixth annual state-wide smoking poster contest during National Education Week on Smoking this week, according to Mrs. William Barth, executive director.

The contest, open to Illinois students in grades four through 12, is sponsored by Illinois TB & RD Association and conducted among local students by 13 regional groups comprising the state organization. The contest drew more than 5,000 entrants last year.

Students may portray any phase of smoking which depicts the advantages of non-smoking. Judging will be based on originality and the ability to attract and communicate that message. Initial judging will be done locally and local winners will be submitted to state competition.

Each state-wide winner will receive a $25 savings bond. Each school represented by a winning student will receive $25 to be used in promoting its health education programs.

Assumption to Stage 'Mame', to Cast Roles

The Assumption High School Theatre is announcing that its spring production will be "Mame," a musical comedy. Auditions for the production's female roles, including the lead role of Mame, will be held on Tuesday from 4 to 10 p.m. at Assumption. Male roles will be filled by members of the AHS student body.

Public performances of "Mame" will be given on April 5, 6, 7, 8, 12, 13, 14 and 15. The April 7 performance is already sold out. Area grade schools will be invited to attend special matinees.

Lazy lighting wastes more than money. Perhaps we can help.

You wouldn't dream of letting your car run when you're not using the same way.

Lighting should work. It's doing its job when it's being used for working. Or to make your home both safe and functional. Or for beauty and decoration. Or to protect your premises.

Lights that are left burning but are doing none of these jobs are wasting your money, of course. But also they're needlessly consuming resources of electricity that are becoming more valuable all the time.

We offer a service that can help you get the most from your home lighting. It's called a Lighting Prescription, available from our Home Economist. She's trained in modern home lighting equipment and techniques. Her prescription can make your kitchen lighting far more functional. It can give your living or dining room a brand new look for little money. Or she can plan a properly lighted study center that could improve report cards.

Our Home Economist's services are available without charge. Just call her at our office.

This booklet can give you many new ideas on home lighting. Ask for your free copy at our office.

New Referral Service Established at SIUE

A-BC-D-VD is not the unbreakable code it may seem to be, but rather is the designation for a new student and community service at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The letters stand for abortion, birth control, drugs and venereal disease," says Linda Merryman of Edwardsville, a graduate student directing the referral service in the Student Activities office of the University Center. "We don't actually treat anybody—we refer them to responsible people and we provide any printed information that we can."

Kimble Funk, assistant to the director of student activities at SIUE, said the service was established primarily to meet needs of students but said it is available to members of the general public.

"This is a unified service that hasn't existed anywhere else on campus," Funk said. "We think it's particularly valuable because students will be dealing with fellow students. The information is reliable and is not biased as possible; people who come to the service will be told of their options."

Miss Merryman said she and her staff consisting of SIUE students Dan Hahn of Dupe, Debbie Bloomer of Alton and Clyda Robinette of Edwardsville are building a referral library. They also have been visiting area agencies dealing with problems such as drugs.

"We visited the Narcotics Service Council (NASOC) in St. Louis to see the facility and discuss the programs there," Miss Merryman said. "It's a non-profit facility where young adults with drug problems go voluntarily. The stress is on group sessions. We want to visit all kinds of agencies that will take referrals so that we understand what each agency is about."

University Health Service is cooperating with the referral service, Miss Merryman said, particularly in the area of venereal disease.

Virginia Armstead, head nurse at Health Service, said students who believe they have venereal disease can be assured of anonymity. She said persons referred to Health Service by A-BC-D-VD will receive an identifying number if they want one that will be known only to the lab technician and the medical doctor or nurse involved in the treatment.

Miss Merryman said because of the cooperation of other groups, "We think we can help people who come to us with problems. We also hope we can increase awareness of those problems through films, seminars and other educational efforts."

The office will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Persons can call the office at 692-2689, extension 21.

Althoff HS to Hold Frosh Placement Tests

The annual placement test required of incoming freshmen students will be held at Althoff Catholic High School at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Students wishing to take the exam are requested to be at the school by 8:45 a.m.

Academic scholarships to Althoff are awarded on the basis of the test. A test fee of $3 is payable on the day of the test.

Kinks Talented But Yet Underrated Rock Group.

By JUDY HUGG
Copley News Service

The Kinks, noted for their bizarre stage performances, are one of the most talented yet underrated rock groups around today. But their public esteem is growing with the release of a new double album that deserves a lot of attention.

"Everybody's in Show Biz," on RCA Records, is produced by Kinkster Ray Davies who has penned most of the songs and also contributes plenty of fine guitar and vocal sounds.

Davies, an amazing lyricist, has contributed some of the most interesting, comical and musical songs that will please your listening ears. The album has twenty-one recordings of the Kinks' best.

Several of the choice songs from their last album "Muswell Hillbillies" are recorded "live" giving them an added dimension.

"Lola," "Supersonic Rocketship," "Celluloid Heroes," and "Baby Face" are just a few of the tasty morsels awaiting prospective listeners.

"Everybody's in Show Biz" is a bargain album, but it will add class to your record collection.

Wave of Future
Is Charles Lloyd a musical wave of the future, or is he caught in a current going nowhere? You wonder after hearing his "Waves" LP by A&M Records.

Granted, Lloyd, 34 and Memphis-born, is an extraordinary musician. He is a master of both tenor sax and flute, as well as being a gifted composer. But you have the nagging feeling when listening to "Waves" that his background music you heard some time or other in a science-fiction movie. It has a twangy, tremulous, outer space sound.

Pure jazz, it isn't — anymore

The Ventures rock along on a boogie-woogie trip on their latest United Artists LP, somewhat mislabeled "Rock and Roll Forever." This is more old hunky-dunk boogie than rock, although sometimes it's hard separating them. Whatever it is, it's crisp, driving rhythm that'll keep you from nodding off.

State Allocates $9 Million Sales Tax for November

Distribution of $9,368,251.09 to Illinois counties and municipalities for their share of state income tax collection for the month of November 1972 has been announced.

The Local Government Distributive Fund Act requires the distribution to counties and municipalities of one-twelfth the income tax on a monthly basis. The distribution is made on a per capita basis to municipalities while county distribution is on the basis of the county population in unincorporated areas.

Under this formula, for the month of November, municipalities received $8,000,111 while counties received $1,368,139.

Income tax allotments in the Quad-City area included $34,294 to Granite City, $5,935 to Madison, $3,944 to Venice and $2,963 to Pontoon Beach.

Madison County received $148,787 for the county government while allocation to all taxing bodies in the county totaled $211,739.

"The many uses of revenue sharing are a reflection of the integrity and careful thought by local officials in initiating such innovative projects as lowering local taxes, free ambulance service, youth drug programs, police-community relations, and other increased social and welfare service," the announcement noted.

The Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs has administrative responsibility for the distribution of revenue sharing funds under the Local Government Distributive Act.

Deadline Jan. 31 on Homestead Exemption

Elderly home owners 65 years of age or older who occupy the property they own are eligible for a $1,500 "homestead exemption" in their 1973 property assessment, but must file an application to qualify for the tax cut. Vot Dee Cruse, Granite City Township assessor, has pointed out.

Applications for renewal of the exemption must be filed no later than Jan. 31. Venice property owners eligible for the exemption may file applications with Venice Township Assessor John Brudick. Nameoki residents may file with Assessor Joseph Cohan and Chouteau Township residents may file the forms with Assessor Otis Reeves.

Cruse explained that homestead exemption has been permitted by Illinois legislation since 1970, but that the exemption must be renewed by an application of the property owner each year.

Application forms are available at the assessors' offices of the four townships in the Quad-City area.

Ogilvie Urges Registration For Tax Relief Grant Forms

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie appealed upon his retirement from office to more than 200,000 elderly and disabled persons to register for tax relief benefits from the state.

Persons who register will be sent forms—as soon as they are available—to claim grants of as much as $300 whether they own or rent their homes, Ogilvie explained.

"Approximately 64,000 persons are now registered, but this leaves another 216,000 who will not receive the grant forms when they are ready."

"The registration form is simple to complete, and will help ensure speedy processing of this historic measure of tax relief."

"For purposes of registration, no help normally will be required. The form does not require a notary, and it asks registrants to answer only seven simple questions."

"I urge both the elderly and the disabled—and their friends or relatives—to give the information as soon as possible so that grants for 1972 can be sent to all qualified persons."

Under the legislation the 1967-72 governor proposed and signed into law, any homeowner who is 65 or more after last Dec. 31, and persons who are or expect to be physically or mentally disabled for a year or more are eligible for the grant program.

The size of the grant depends on the amount of local real estate taxes or rent payable this year, exclusive of not, of the recipients.

The grants cover real estate taxes for 1972 which are payable this year, and rent paid last year.

According to estimates of the Bureau of the Budget, the following groups of persons are eligible: 127,000 elderly persons over 65, and 103,000 who are or expect to be physically or mentally disabled for a year or more.

Under Ogilvie's program, one-quarter of the rent, exclusive of charges for utilities or furnishings, is counted place of real estate taxes in figuring grants.

Mrs. Jeannette Mullen, administrative assistant to Director George E. Mahlin of the Illinois Department of Revenue, said persons should write—not telephone—to the department, Box 1124, Springfield 62708 to receive the registration forms.

"Just as soon as the final grant forms are approved, they will be mailed to registered persons. But we have no way

Children, Family Services Unit Takes on More Jobs

Copley News Service

Springfield—Pity the poor Department of Children and Family Services. If Noah were around today, he'd probably ask them to build the Ark for him.

Everybody, it seems, feels the department can do at least part of its job better, so the department finds itself gearing to take on three new jobs with no clear idea how big any one of them will be.

For added problems, the pending change in state administration could spell reversal of plans to transfer case work for public aid clients to the department, though task forces have been working for months on arranging such a changeover.

Federal regulations recently mandated a separation of services, to put responsibility for financial matters in one area, and leave it to clients whether or not they wanted social workers, which would come from a different sector.

In Illinois, the decision was to refer social work, when requested, to Children and Family Services. Separation was accomplished, as required, by Jan. 1, but public aid is still providing case work on an interim basis, at least until June.

Should a new administration take a new tack, however, the transfer may be scrapped and counseling provided by a different arm of public aid. If it goes many public cases would feel through, no one knows how they need social services, so the CFS department must prepare to handle an undetermined number of cases—maybe.

Then, on July 1, amended corrections regulations go into effect, and any child 12 years or under who runs afoul of the law will be turned over to CFS, which will either provide intensive casework for the youngster while he remains at home, or adopts some other appropriate action.

A task force currently is trying to find out how many of these cases to anticipate.

though the number is expected to be relatively small. Dick Bond, director of child welfare, says average totals probably run a bit over 100 a year, and the department is already taking steps to remove as many as possible, committed under old procedures, from the department's correctional custody.

As of Nov. 30, 39 already had been removed, he said, and a separate unit headed by Tom Young has been set up in Chicago to continue working on this separation prior to July 1.

The modest shock probably will come next Jan. 1, when the department will take over another class of cases previously relegated to corrections—"minors in need of supervision," which means any youngster in trouble with authority but who has not been charged with a crime which would be a crime if committed by an adult.

Another many judges were reluctant to commit a youngster to a correctional institution for such acts as repeated truancy, running away from home, bullying and the like, many cases were dismissed though the youngster obviously needed some outside aid.

Now, says Bond, when judges can remove the child to CFS instead of an institution, there is no telling how many cases the agency may have to deal with. Another task force is working on that and hopes to have an estimate within 30 to 60 days, he said, though early indications are there could be as many as 5,000 such cases in the Chicago area.

Obviously all this is going to mean a need for a beefed-up staff, particularly among case workers. Five or six are at work in the Chicago special unit, working on the 12-years-and-under cases, Bond said, and he would estimate well in excess of 100 more will have to be added in order to deal with minors in need of supervision when that segment goes into effect next January.

708 Board Seeking Criminal Psychologist

The Madison County (708) Mental Health Board is seeking a full-time criminal psychologist to work with inmates at the Madison County Jail in Edwardsville. Ralph Yemmi, chairman of the 708 Board reported at the board's regular meeting Monday night in the County Courthouse.

Yemmi said he is interviewing applicants for the post but has been unable to find a qualified psychologist who is directly connected to a medical school, as required by 708 rules.

He said the psychologist will work with the Madison County Circuit Court in attempting to determine the motives of criminals and in suggesting programs to rehabilitate them.

The post will pay approximately $15,000 to $17,500 to start, with all county benefits. Yemmi said he had hoped to start the program Jan. 2, but it will be delayed until a psychologist can be hired.

The 708 board approved bills totaling $28,000, including expenses of the Quad-Cities Mental Health Clinic in Granite City.

HIT-RUN CAR ABANDONED

Dental School Joins Veterans Hospital System

The Southern Illinois University School of Dental Medicine has joined the Veterans Affairs medical system, a move that dental school Dean Frank Sobkowski calls "an excellent opportunity for our students and faculty to be part of an ongoing medical center."

The SIU dental school, which began with its first class of students last September on the university's Alton campus, is directly connected to a medical school. But, says Sobkowski, by joining the VA system, SIU will work with staff at the two VA hospitals in St. Louis and other VA hospitals in the region, including ones in Marion, Ill., and Columbia, Mo.

Sobkowski sits on a dean's committee with VA representatives and the dean of the Washington University medical and dental schools and the St. Louis University medical school.

"The next step will be appointment of SIU faculty as consultants to the VA system's educational and patient care programs," Sobkowski said. "After that, there will be development of inter-institutional programs involving students and faculty at the VA hospitals."

Sobkowski said the VA hospitals have "top-flight resources" for patient care and experience that will allow SIU dental students to observe cases they probably would not see at dental school's Alton campus.

Landfill Alternates Sought at Meeting

Dale Sherrard of the Soil Conservation Service, and Ronald Yarbrough, a geology professor at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, will speak at a public meeting on landfills at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the board room of the Madison County Courthouse at Edwardsville.

The meeting, called by Mrs. Sybil Belliss, a member of the County Board, is to "seek alternatives to landfills for the disposal of solid waste." The board presently is considering the expansion of the Mal Landfill on Chouteau Island, a plan which was defeated at the board's last meeting. The issue is expected to be brought before the board again Jan. 17.

Gov. Walker -- Restore Public Faith, End Special Favors and Arrogance, Put People's Needs First

Text of Monday's inaugural address by Daniel Walker, new governor of Illinois:

Three hundred years ago, Louis Joliet and Father Marquette embarked on their "voyage of discovery" through the land that is now Illinois.

Traveling down the Mississippi River, drifting past what is now Galena, Rock Island and Quincy, they saw a land sparse in people but rich in promise.

It took vision and courage for the first settlers of Illinois to believe in that promise.

James Monroe, writing to Thomas Jefferson a century after that first voyage of discovery, said of our Illinois ancestors that their land will "never contain a sufficient number of inhabitants to entitle them to membership in the confederacy."

Two centuries and 11 million citizens later, we can smile at the fallibility of this forecast. But we can also understand it. It is enormously difficult to envision how different the future can be.

And yet, it is just that sort of vision which has distinguished the people of Illinois.

Over the years they have consistently chosen the harder but more rewarding path; they have always looked at a crisis not for the sufferings it threatens but for the opportunity it provides.

When Chicago was ravaged by fire a century ago, the people of Illinois could have rebuilt the city as it was.

Instead, they took a Chicago of wood and cobblestones and built a new city of stone and steel and the new architecture of Louis Sullivan and Frank Lloyd Wright.

When poverty stalked our neighborhoods and people seemed helpless, it would have been easy for leaders to hide behind a wall of indifference. Instead, there was James Adams, helping others find their voices, to speak for their own needs.

And there was John Peter Altgeld, exercising courageous leadership in his fight against special interests and for the working people of Illinois.

We now have another crisis; the crisis of our faith in our own government.

And as in the past, this crisis provides opportunity.

Two years ago, when I embarked on my own "voyage of discovery" through Illinois, I learned that this state is not just farms, suburbs and Chicago.

It is our other great cities such as Rockford, Peoria, Decatur, Peoria, East St. Louis and Springfield.

You simply did not believe government was worth your trust.

This was no partisan view. It was shared by Democrats and Republicans about Democrats and Republicans.

It was almost as if no one administration or official. It was instead a pervasive cynicism.

The people of Illinois—like the people across much of America—simply do not believe that our institutions, including government, can do what they say they will do.

They do not believe government understands how they live; what they need; what they want for their families.

Government, they said to me over and over, knows how to tax money but not how to spend it wisely.

They told me how discontented they were with the grand and elaborate social programs costing millions of dollars but not solving the problems facing people.

As one man said to me,

"Dan, a dollar's worth of spending can save a nickel's worth of understanding."

This discontent, this criticism, reaches from Brookport to Galena, from East St. Louis to Zion, from Warsaw to Waukegan, from Cairo to Chicago.

It poses, I believe, the most serious dilemma we face. If our citizens continue to lose their sense of faith, it can strike at the heart of democracy, for if we no longer believe that the people we choose can govern us, we are really saying that we no longer believe in our own capacity for self-government.

I do not share that belief. I believe that here in Illinois and around the nation, the central belief of the founding fathers is sound; the people are the best judges of what they want and need.

And I believe that much of our own loss of faith has happened because too many in government do not believe in this American credo; they believe that only experts, politicians, bureaucrats or those with wealth or power can tell people what to do.

Let government step back; let people step forward.

My deepest resolve as governor will be to sweep the arrogance of bureaucracy from the halls of power, to let the voice of the people be heard once again.

And to hear that voice, I will, in the months and years ahead, return to the towns and farms and cities of Illinois.

I will hold accountability sessions on a regular basis so that the people whose government this is can tell me what I have done and have not done.

These sessions will not be held behind closed doors or only for those with special power and office.

They will be open to every citizen who wishes to attend. I want your knowledge and wisdom.

To those who are in mental hospitals; to those who fear the streets of their own neighborhoods;

To those with inadequate housing or schools; to you I offer not the certainty of success, but the promise of concern—the hard work of trying to make government work better for people.

To every one of you, I make this pledge:

Madison Lions to Health Officials Alert Aid Opposition For New Flu Outbreak To School Busing

The Madison Lions Club pledged its support at a club meeting to a fight against busing Madison school pupils now spearheaded by the Concerned Parents Organization. Club members also agreed to add to the club fund to aid in pending litigation involving the busing issue.

The action was taken after Mrs. Donna Crook, president of the Concerned Parents group, and two other members of the organization, Jean Boyer, co-president, and Don Boyer, vice-president, outlined the organization's opposition to busing.

Mrs. Crook told the meeting that the Concerned Parents Organization is opposed only to busing and not to equal opportunity in education. In addition to other problems anticipated as a result of busing by the group, there is no federal reimbursement for busing and a tax increase would be necessary, Mrs. Crook said.

She appealed to the club members for support in obtaining a federal court order that would avert busing of pupils in Madison.

As a result, club members also pledged assistance in enrolling a delegation of 1,000 persons to attend a federal court hearing in Alton Jan. 22 when the issue of Madison busing is to be considered.

Mrs. Crook said the organization already has obtained 1,000 signatures on petitions opposing school busing.

Copley News Service

Springfield—If you come down with flu in the coming weeks, you probably aren't really going to care if you have the old King Kong or the new England-72 strain. In either event, you're going to cough, have a fever, a headache and ache all over, and it's probably going to come on suddenly.

Which kind you have will matter however to public health officials who have already received reports from the department's Chicago laboratory that increasing numbers of specimens of influenza-type infections are being received for diagnosis.

Some of these have been definitely confirmed to be the new or England-72 strain, according to Dr. Byron Francis, head of the epidemiology unit of public health's disease control division.

If significant numbers are found to be England-72 types, Dr. Francis said, there is a bigger chance of a heavy outbreak in Illinois, since there will be less natural immunity in the state's citizens.

The older King Kong strain, also a product of the Type-A virus, has been around a while and some people have developed at least some immunity to that one.

While flu outbreaks are usually heaviest between January and March or even a little later, Dr. Francis said public health officials believe that since some England-72 strains have already been identified in the state, a heavy outbreak, if it comes at all, will probably come sooner, and these initial cases will merely be the first trickle of the flood.

In an attempt to get a better picture of the prospects, the department is asking additional information about suspected cases, Dr. Francis said.

Health officials are required to report only confirmed cases, but positive identification is a long, involved process which cannot always be carried out when essential equipment and personnel are not available, he said, so the department is trying to get more information about suspected cases.

If an outbreak is to come, there is apparently very little that can be done either to prevent it or treat it once you've got it.

Because the disease is highly contagious, Dr. Francis said, vaccines currently in use to prevent infection are of limited protection, though he added he would still recommend that persons with chronic cardiac conditions, serious metabolic disturbances like diabetes, or respiratory conditions get the inoculations even at this late date.

Since the inoculations usually take a minimum of a month to offer whatever protection they are going to, it might be too late by now.

Once caught, there is no specific treatment for the flu, which will normally run its course in about a week, though a cough and general tired feeling may persist for another two weeks, Dr. Francis said.

Treatment is usually symptomatic, he said—that is, taking whatever action will make the patient comfortable and assure him of as much rest and necessary nourishment as possible.

The old standbys of aspirin, bed rest and lots of fluids are still the standard prescription, though antibiotics may be added in cases where secondary infections develop. Those with the cardiac, metabolic and respiratory problems are more likely to develop serious complications, he added.

"Wilderness Journey"

Film Showing in GC

"Wilderness Journey," the color outdoor film which won the Grand Award at the 40th Annual Film Festival of the Photographic Society of America, is being shown through Tuesday at the Washington Theater in Granite City.

The motion picture was filmed on location in Alaska and utilized trained animals. It details the adventures of a young Tlingit Indian boy, Joniko, in his search through the remote wilderness for his father who was away hunting.

A Tlingit Indian boy who had no acting experience, Tony Tucker Williams, was chosen from more than 500 applicants because of his experiences in the wild and with wild animals. Among the animals Williams encountered during filming were a group of wild grizzly bears and several 60-ton grey whales.

The motion picture is rate "G" for general audiences and is recommended for children. Weekly showings begin at 4:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday shows will begin at noon.

Travel Exchange Plan Beneficial to Youth

A 10-week exchange program through which U. S. high school students and their adult advisors spent a summer vacation in Australia and New Zealand, while their "down-under" counterparts traveled in this country, was described by Lamont Heidinger and Richard Sanders, both of Edwardsville, for Granite City Optimists at a weekly luncheon.

Convening at the Tri-Cities Area YMCA, Optimist members heard the travel experiences recounted by the two men, who accompanied the group on the Rotary-sponsored student exchange holiday.

Heidinger is a past district governor of Rotary International and Sanders is assistant superintendent of schools in Edwardsville. Ten persons made the trip from the Madison County area.

The speakers illustrated their travel narrative with colored slides. They also reported the American youth and adults lived in the private homes of Australian and New Zealand families, a practice which enabled the visitors "to learn five times as much" about the countries and people as a normal vacationer staying at hotels.

Don Farrington was program chairman and introduced the guest speakers. About 28 Optimists attended the luncheon.

Maurice Dailey, GC Optimist president, conducted a short business session and announced the appointment of Anthony Michel, Scott Hendricks and Wally Wyman to a special committee responsible for arranging menus at future weekly meetings.

Family Planning Clinic Offers Testing Services

Testing services and medical examinations are available to Quad-City area residents at the Family Planning Clinic, 1924 Niedringhaus Ave., Mrs. Martha Hogan, R.N., clinic director, said this week.

Clinic hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, with prospective clients invited to call 451-0132 or 876-4848 for information and appointments.

Medical examinations by the clinic physician are provided from 1 to 4:30 p.m. each Tuesday, with an appointment necessary in advance of the consultation, Mrs. Hogan said.

Birth control information is available and interviews are conducted by the clinic staff each weekday, the director explained. Among the services offered are pregnancy testing, Pap smears (cancer test) and venereal disease testing and education.

There is adequate public transportation to the clinic site,

Mrs. Hogan noted. She added, however, that transportation will be furnished to clients if requested.

The Family Planning Clinic is the first of its type to be established in the Quad-Cities to provide advice, aid and medical services to individuals and families. Assistance at the Granite City facility also is offered to patients living in the surrounding rural areas.

Staff members include a licensed practical nurse, a seretarial-records employee and outreach field worker. The clinic is funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare of 310 Harrison Ave., Madison, and the U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity.

It's primary objective is to furnish approved methods of contraception consistent with patient choice and acceptance, Mrs. Hogan explained.

The medical facility is operated under supervision of the Madison County Economic Op-

Every component system we sell has a 5 year written parts guarantee and a minimum of 2 year labor guarantee on major components including speakers and electronics. Your investment is safe when you shop at CMC. | ONE-YEAR SPEAKER EXCHANGE
If, for any reason within one year after the purchase of a component system from CMC, you would rather have a different speaker system, you will receive FULL CREDIT of your purchase price less any cabinet or speaker damage, toward the list price of any equivalent or higher-priced speaker. | 90-DAY EXCHANGE PRIVILEGE
Any other component in your system may be exchanged within 90 days of purchase for an equivalent or higher-priced unit. You only pay the difference, if any, and return the item in its original carton in like-new condition with your receipt of purchase. | TRADE-IN POLICY

MARRIED. Army Private and Mrs. Ben E. Gordon, whose wedding took place on New Year's Day morning at St. John United Church of Christ, She is the former Marilyn Denise Walker, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Walker Sr., 2112 Alton Ave., Madison.

Couple Exchanges Vows at St. John United Church

Miss Marilyn Denise Walker became the bride of Private Ben E. Gordon, U.S. Army, at 11 a.m. on New Year's Day at St. John United Church of Christ.

Mrs. Irene Barwick provided a program of wedding music preceding the arrival of the bride party. The Rev. Dr. Paul Surbey performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Walker Sr., 2112 Alton Ave., Madison. The groom's mother, Mrs. Edith McIntire, resides at 1729 Fifth St., also in Madison.

The white mira mist and Chantilly lace gown worn by the former Miss Walker was designed with a fitted bodice, featuring a high lace neckline and long full sleeves.

The very bouffant skirt, formed by tiers of lace and mira mist fabric, was caught up at the waistline, creating an apron effect.

She wore a train of pearls to secure the full-length mantilla veil edged in matching lace and she held a bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs. Clyde Walker Jr., a sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, serving with the bridesmaid, Miss Brenda Boiling.

They were gowning in identically styled dresses created with fitted bodices of pale blue chiffon over tulle and long sheer sleeves. A sheer ruffle defined the necklines and the front of the Empire bodices.

The full-length skirts were in a deep shade of blue and green floral print accented at the high-rise waistlines with a Christmas green grosgrain ribbon, ending in a bow at the back.

Each wore a floral print headpiece attached to a pale blue veil and carried a bouquet of white carnations tipped in blue. Donna and Rodney Walker, a sister and brother of the bride, were flower girl and ringbearer.

The former was dressed in a white lace over tulle frock made with a square neckline, trimmed with pink rosebuds, puffed sleeves and a very full skirt accented with rosebuds. Her miniature bouquet was similar to the adult attendants' flowers.

Clyde Walker Jr., a brother of the bride, was best man, serving with Gene Dunnivant, the groom's cousin, as groomsmen and Larry Murphy, the bride's uncle, as usher.

The bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murphy, 1332 Edwardsville Road, were hosts at a reception following the service.

Pvt. and Mrs. Gordon are now residing near Fort Knox, Ky., where he is stationed with the U.S. Army. Both attended the Madison schools.

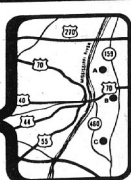

MR. AND MRS. SCOTT E. COBB, who were married Dec. 30 in an early evening ceremony at Emmanuel Baptist Church. She is the former Miss Sue Ellen Carbaugh, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carbaugh, 1820 Spring Ave.

St. Louis Interference with Kaskaskia Port Area Development Is Feared, Official Says

Expansion of "St. Louis harbor" boundaries to include the Kaskaskia Regional Port District south of here could interfere with development and progress in the Kaskaskia Canal area, it was charged this week by Stanley L. Reebie.

In a statement to the Press-Record-Reeble, secretary and general manager of the Kaskaskia Regional Port District, said Sunday St. Louis interference in the Kaskaskia region may be insurmountable, judging by "Missouri's attitude toward another project, a Columbia-Waterloo area airport."

Quid-Cityans have voiced concern about St. Louis organizations' decision this fall to "help" Illinois harbors by adding them to St. Louis harbor jurisdiction for reporting and planning purposes.

The text of Reebie's comment follows:
"Much has been said lately about the future economy of the St. Louis and East St. Louis area."

"Everyone, I think, will agree that both sides of the Mississippi in the above mentioned area need to have a long range planning, coupled with many millions of dollars of capital expenditures in order to create a sound economic base that will last into the distant future."

"The Kaskaskia Regional Port District is a municipal body, created by legislative enactment approved June 22, 1965, with the title amended by an act approved on July 7, 1967, creating the name Kaskaskia Regional Port District."

"The Kaskaskia Regional Port District is funded through general appropriation, administered by the Department of Business and Economic Development, state of Illinois, which allows that the Port District do work in very close cooperation with the business and Economic Development Department.

"We have been working very hard to initiate programs in the Kaskaskia Navigation Canal area, which would tend to be an inducement for future industrial expansion."

"Ralph Stotz, chairman of the board of the Kaskaskia Regional Port District, has appointed committees to study methods that would be appropriate to apply to the needs and problems which confront an industrial development organization endeavoring to create a sound economic base for an area that is depressed, such as Southern Illinois has been in the past."

"The persons serving on these respective committees are people with many years of sound business experience."
"They are well aware of procedures to be followed in an orderly development program such as we are contemplating in the Kaskaskia Valley area."

"As the Kaskaskia Canal reaches completion, it is to be expected that water-related industrial programs will be instituted, which will create employment, and insure a sound tax base in the area affected, in turn boosting the economy of the Kaskaskia region."

"Recent press releases have stated that the St. Louis Area Board of Commerce, in conjunction with the city of East St. Louis, East-West Gateway Coordinating Council and the Bi-State Development Agency are developing a St. Louis harbor study which would expand the limits of the St. Louis Harbor to the southern boundary of Monroe County in Illinois."

"They are also proposing that the bi-state agency which would be created would wish to involve themselves in the development of the Kaskaskia Valley area."

"But I insist that they do not interfere with the orderly business being conducted by the Kaskaskia Regional Port District."

"I have recently received letters from interested parties who seem to think that they of the Kaskaskia Regional Port District were not aware of just what harm could be done to the orderly programs we have instituted in our development program."

"If the St. Louis harbor study was allowed to proceed as outlined, it could very well disrupt the far-reaching plans that the Kaskaskia Port District has been working toward for a number of years."

"Ralph Stotz, chairman of the board of the Kaskaskia Regional Port District, has also expressed deep concern concerning the above mentioned proposal by the St. Louis harbor study."

"There is much more that should be said, in detail, but I think the feelings of Mr. Stotz and the commissioners of the Kaskaskia District are sufficiently covered in this statement."

"As everyone concerned can readily see, the Kaskaskia Regional Port District is very much opposed to interference of any kind, by any body or bodies, into the business and workings of the Kaskaskia Regional Port District."

State Development Agency are developing a St. Louis harbor study which would expand the limits of the St. Louis Harbor to the southern boundary of Monroe County in Illinois.
"They are also proposing that the bi-state agency which would be created would wish to involve themselves in the development of the Kaskaskia Valley area."
"But I insist that they do not interfere with the orderly business being conducted by the Kaskaskia Regional Port District."
"I have recently received letters from interested parties who seem to think that they of the Kaskaskia Regional Port District were not aware of just what harm could be done to the orderly programs we have instituted in our development program."

New Farm Feed Grain Bases Being Offered
Farms without a feed grain base may have a base established for the 1973 feed grain program if they meet eligibility requirements. An application for a new farm base must be filed with the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office at Edwardsville by Feb. 15.

Feed grain bases for 1973 are automatically established for all farms that have a base provision applies only to farms that do not have a base.

To be eligible for a new farm feed grain base, neither the owner nor operator of the farm may have an interest in any other farm which has a feed grain base established for 1973.

The operator must expect to obtain more than 50% of his 1973 grain base from farming. Also, the farm for which an application is filed must be suitable for feed grain production without undue erosion.

Any interested producer who can meet these requirements may contact the ASC office for an application by the filing date.
